Dulles Sees Soft Red Policy Ahead

Power Struggle May Produce New Sincerity

U. S. State Secretary Tells Plans Regarding Islands Near Formosa

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles says a power struggle in Moscow eventually will produce Russian leaders with whom the United States cna make "practical agreements" to ease world tensions.

He also says the Formosa crisis can be settled if Red China will renounce the use of force to capture Nationalist-held islands.

Diplomats noted that the secretary's speech last night to the Foreign Policy Assn. in New York was calm and peaceful in tone but firm against spread of communism in Asia.

In Taipei, Formosa, Nationalist Chinese sources welcomed the statement by Dulles saying that the U. S. Secretary of State had rejected the idea of Chiang Kai-shek surrendering the offshore island outposts of Quemoy and Matsu to the Reds.

Sources with top-level connections said there was "no need to worry" because Dulles had not specifically stated that the United States would defend those islands.

One official said, "President Chiang asserted only the other day that the position was quite clear and it is"

The Nationalists apparently think there is no doubt of U.S. support if Quemoy and Matsu are invaded.

Dulles apparently took this tone deliberately in contrast to recent warlike speeches by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Red Chinese Foreign Minister Chou En-lai. Molotov denounced the United States. Chou threatened, as Dulles put it, to use "all the forces at his command" to capture Formosa.

AS FOR THE Formosa problem, Dulles said the United States "has no commitment and no purpose' to defend such islands as Quemoy and Matsu "as such."

But he made clear that it might well fight over Quemoy and Matsu if any Communist attack on them was aimed at the conquest of Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa.

Dulles appealed to the Chinese Reds to reconsider a United Na-

San Francisco To Get 1956 GOP Nominating Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican National Committee today unanimously ratified the selection of San Francisco as the site for the GOP national convention in 1956. Approval was by a voice vote.

The committee approved a resolution submitted by a site subcommittee calling for convening of the convention in the huge Cow Palace in the West Coast city the week beginning Aug. 20, 1956.

National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said San Francisco won out in an 11th-hour bid over Chicago and Philadelphia. The Democrats have picked Chicago for their 1956 convention starting either July 23 or Aug. 13.

President Eisenhower arranged to deliver an off-the-record talk at a closed luncheon meeting of the GOP committee.

Hall, in a speech prepared for the session, heaped praise on Eisenhower as "the greatest leader of our times" and appealed to his fellow committeemen:

"Let's sell Republicanism as we never have before. And we can do it under the leadership of one of the greatest men any party ever had—Dwight D. Eisenhower—if we follow him."

Hall, who says he assumes Eisenhower will run for a second term, also hit at dissenters within the party who, he said, "haven't caught up with the facts of life."

Without naming them, he said, "These little groups don't trouble me; they have always been with us. Every nation and every political party has had them."

Up until last week San Francisco had not been considered in the GOP convention picture. Only Chicago and Philadelphia had made formal bids of $250,000 each weeks ago and these were repeated yesterday.

Hall credited Mayor Elmer Robinson with spearheading the drive for selection of San Francisco.

The city sent a representative here yesterday offering to match the $250,000 bids of the other cities and promising the GOP rent-free use of the city's Cow Palace, a huge structure built for cattle shows and other expositions and having a seating capacity of close to 17,000.

Cool weather and an option on 10,000 hotel rooms also were held out as inducements.

San Francisco has had only one national nominating convention.

That was in 1920 when the Democrats selected Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio to run for president with Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York on the ticket for vice president. That ticket lost.

Hall said the laws of Ohio, Massachusetts, South Dakota and possibly Connecticut regarding certification of candidates for the ballot might interfere with holding a conventin as late as Aug. 20, but it was his understanding these matters would be "cleared up" in time.

Benson Sees 'Stability' For U. S. Farmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Benson told Congress today the biggest shock of farm adjustment from abnormal wartime demands appears to have been passed and producers generally are now in a period of "comparative stability."

In a statement before the House Agriculture Committee, the GOP farm chief appealed to Congress to refrain from "rocking the boat" with regard to present federal farm programs.

Benson said indications of improvement in the agricultural economy are to be found in (1) stabilizing farm prices and farm income; (2) an advancing level of per capita farm income; (3) a slight increase last year in agricultural assets; (4) continuation of a high domestic demand for food; (5) increasing foreign trade in farm products and (6) an expanded movement of government - held price - depressing surpluses into use, particularly abroad.

Benson had been asked by the committee to make particular recommendations today with regard to possible changes in the dairy support program. The secretary said he believes the present program should be continued.

Conceding that the dairy surplus and price situation looked "dark indeed" a year ago, Benson said the industry today shows "new signs of health and vigor."

East Ohio Cities Rap B&O Move

COLUMBUS (AP) — Eastern Ohio representatives today called on the Legislature to formally protest the proposed discontinuance of the last Baltimore and Ohio passenger train operating between Wheeling, W. Va., and Cincinnati.

Rep. A G. Lancione (D-Belmont) said in submitting the resolution that it was backed by numerous civic, fraternal and other organizations in cities along the route.

The cities included Bellaire, Barnesville, Cambridge, Zanesville and Newark.

"Such indifference to the demands of equity and obvious dependency of the people, the resolution read, "should and hereby is condemend and formally protested against."

Lancione said the state utilities commission has scheduled a hearing next Wednesday on the proposed discontinuance.

Others sponsoring the resolution with Lancione were Reps. Howard E. Faught (D-Guernsey), Robert E. Zellar (R-Muskingum), and Aurel E. Coffman (D-Licking).

Ohio Flamingo Feathers Due For Color Aid

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fading flamingos at the Cincinnati Zoo got new hope for their feathers yesterday with news the government is tossing 151 cases of gulf shrimp their way.

It isn't actually a government project, seeing that Yankee flamingos get shrimp to restore their natural color. It just happened that way after U. S. Food and Drug Administration inspectors seized the lot.

There really isn't much wrong with the shrimp, except they were billed as "fresh frozen" and some soul down on the Gulf Coast added a dab of amonium compounds to make sure they'd remain "fresh," which is somewhat contrary to the spirit of the thing.

The U. S. marshal has been directed to take the shrimp to the zoo for the exclusive use of anyone in a cage who wants them.

J. F. Heusser, executive director of the zoo, said it will mean more than luxurious feed to the flamingos. They are losing their scarlet color because the zoo normally can't afford to buy what they could themselves catch around the gulf. The flamingos have faded to a pink, but the shrimp should perk them up.

Panel Slated To Postpone Slash In Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Cooper (D-Tenn) said today the House Ways and Means Committee will act next week on President Eisenhower's request to postpone $3 billion in tax cuts.

The committee is expected to approve by a big margin Eisenhower's recommendation for a one-year postponement of these tax cuts now set automatically for April 1:

(1) From 52 to 47 per cent in the corporation income tax rate, amounting to about $2 billion annually; and (2) about $1 billion in excise tax rates on automobiles, cigarettes, liquor, gasoline, beer and wine.

Meanwhile, it was reliably reported, key Democrats planned a strategy huddle Saturday to consider two questions likely to be much more explosive:

1. A proposal by some Ways and Means members for a drive now to cut individual income taxes for everybody.

2. A move by others to seek repeal of a controversial tax cut on income from dividends, included last year's Republican - sponsored general tax revision bill.

Some committee members have suggested one or both of these proposals might be tacked onto the tax extension request.

A-Test Scheduled For Tomorrow

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — After three postponements, chances for the opening of the 1955 atomic test series tomorrow appears bright because the Atomic Energy Commission has an ace in the hole.

The AEC disclosed yesterday that, beginning tomorrow, it has a "les sensitive" shot ready for detonation in addition to the one which has thrice been canceled since Tuesday.

The original shot was slated to be exploded from a 500-foot tower on Yucca Flat with 1,100 military men in trenches 4,000 yards away.

Continuing cloudiness and high winds aloft, coupled with sprinkles of rain in the Las Vegas area, forced the third postponement.

Which Should Ohioans Buy: Brains, Bricks?

State's Mental Health Program Under Study By General Assembly

COLUMBUS (AP) — Should Ohio spend more money for professional treatment for its mentally ill in attempts to cure and send home prolonged confinement cases?

That was the question which faced Ohio legislators today as they prepared to go home after the seventh work week of the 101st General Assembly.

The problems of thementallyill were brought before the legislators yesterday by a Kansas mental health expert in an address before a joint session of the Legislature.

And that was his proposition: Shall we continue to build "piles of bricks and mortar" to house the mentally ill, or shall we recruit enough capable physicians and psychiatrists to treat them so they return to society as useful citizens? He added: "Shall we buy bricks or brains?"

* * *

IN A 30-MINUTE speech, delivered on the Legislature's invitation, he recounted cases where long-time inmates of Kansas' mental institutions returned to society after brief counseling with trained mental physicians.

It cost Kansas a lot of money, Dr. Menninger said, to put treatment instead of confinement into effect—about four times as much as the state had been spending. But, he said, citizens of Kansas took into consideration they were trying to cure human disease; trying to bring fellow citizens back to useful existence.

Legislators were impressed, particularly since they have been asked to approve bond issues for up to $150 million to build new hospitals for Ohio mentally ill.

And Ohio's director of mental hygiene and correction, Dr. John D. Porterfield, said he agrees with Dr. Menninger's recommendation. He said an Ohio building program would be aimed at replacing outmoded buildings rather than erecting new buildings.

Probably the top bill passed in the Legislature yesterday was a Senate measure to increase the minimum and maximum salaries of county auditors. The Senate approved and sent to the House a bill increasing county auditors' minimum pay from $2,600 to $3,600 a year and their top salaries from $9,000 to $10,000 a year. The minimum increase would apply only in the state's smallest counties; the increase in the maximum would apply in the eight metropolitan counties.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House bills to permit physically and mentally able 70-year-olds to continue on the state payroll and to increase pay allowed shorthand court reporters from $15 to $18 a day. Top annual pay for such reporters would be $6,000 a year in counties with two or more common pleas judges and $4,800 in others.

Navy Plans Probe Of Report On Sub

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Navy plans an investigation to give "proper evaluation" to the reported sighting of an unidentified submarine near Fort Pierce, Fla., Wednesday morning.

Two Coast Guardsmen, sent out to investigate an "orange glow" at sea, reported they approached within "a quarter of a mile or less" of the object about 11 miles southeast of Fort Pierce before they lost sight of it.

Socialist Almost Lines Up New Government In France

PARIS (AP) — Christian Pineau completed a proposed government lineup early today but within a few hours three of his 36 nominees withdrew at their party's request. All were followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Their action sent Pineau scurrying for replacements. He had hoped to ask the National Assembly tomorrow to approve his Cabinet and confirm him as the nation's first Socialist premier since 1947.

Those who withdrew were Edward Corniglion-Molinier, who had been named to the justice ministry; Pierre Ferri, named to the ministry of posts, telephone and telegraph; and Andre Gaubert, secretary of state for commerce.

All are members of the Republican Union for Social Action (URAS).

Two Gaullists chose to stay in Pineau's government — Maurice Lemaire, minister for reconstruction, and Diomede Catroux, secretary of state for air. Both held the same positions in Pierre Mendes-France's government.

* * *

THE WITHDRAWALS left the other 15 ministries divided this way among five parties; socialists 4, Catholic Popular Republican Movement (MRP) 4, Radical Socialists 4, UNRAS 1, and the small leftist Union of Democratic and Socialists Resistance (UDSR) 2.

Without Gaubert, this was the lineup of the other 18 secretaries of state, whose posts are below ministerial rank but are part of the government: Socialists 6, Radical Socialists 5, MRP 4, URAS 1 and USDR 2.

Before the URAS defection, the most favorable estimates had given Pineau less than 320 supporting votes in the 627-member chamber. With likely abstentions, that should have assured his confirmation but promised a shaky government with a brief life.

Pineau was called in by President Rene Coty Monday to try to form France's 21st postliberation cabinet—a task in which both Antoine Pinay, conservative independent, and Pierre Pflimlin of the MRP had failed.

If Pineau wins assembly approval, he will be the first Socialist premier since Paul Ramadier's government resigned in November 1947. Since the 1951 elections, the Socialists have even refusd to serve in any cabinet.

Farmer Guilty Of Chopping Ring In Tree

Elon Farren, 77, of Rt. 1, Wilmington, was found guilty yesterday by a common pleas court jury of maliciously injuring a maple tree in Sugar Grove Cemetery.

The tree is located near a mausoleum which Farren built. It houses the remains of his two wives, a brother and a sister. He claims a tree limb fell against the front of the mausoleum about 7 years ago, that another limb fell on the roof about four years ago, and that the maple threatens to fall and damage the structure.

Judge Charles R. Kirk withheld sentence pending appeal. Maximum penalty for the offense is a fine of $25 to $500 and a jail term not exceeding 30 days.

The defense presented no testimony. Farren's attorneys claimed the Revised Code of Ohio does not make the charge for which he was indicted an offense against the state.

Mrs. Henry Hague II, cemetery secretary and wife of the cemetery superintendent, testified she tried to stop Farren from girdling the tree with the ax last October. She said he threatened her with the ax and then continued to chop away.

Ammer Refuses To Wait For Long Period

Independent Firms Ask Time, Report; March Date Likely

Many of the state's larger independent telephone companies have asked for delay in a Public Utilitis Commission hearing on a controversial rate increase provision, The Herald learned here Wednesday night.

At least 28 of the independent firms, including the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company, reportedly asked the PUCO for a postponement of "at least three weeks." There are approximately 100 independent phone companies in the state, many of them small organizations.

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer, when notified of the companies' request for a delay, warned that he will not agree to any prolonged wait for the hearing, originally set for next Thursday. However, he said he would "be willing to go along" if a delay of only a few weeks is granted.

March 10 has been unofficially mentioned as possible new date for the hearing.

* * *

AT THAT hearing, the independent firms will be called upon to defend legality of a rate provision under which a long distance rate increase granted the Ohio Bell Telephone Company gives automatic increases in the same amount to the independents.

Ohio Bell was granted a hike in long distance rates last January 1, and it was later learned Ohio Consolidated, and presumably many other independents, raised their long distance tolls about the same time.

Ammer touched off the PUCO investigation when he protested specifically against the Ohio Consolidated increase. A member of the PUCO at that time said the apparent illegality of the provision had been overlooked until the commission received Ammer's request for a hearing.

From the original action against Ohio Consolidated, the case has now been expanded by the PUCO to involve all of the state's independents.

Senate Seen OKing Hike In Congress Pay

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leaders predicted today the Senate will follow the House lead in voting a substantial pay boost for members of Congress and federal judges.

The House voted 283-118 yesterday to give the 96 senators and 435 representatives a $10,000 annual boost to $25,000. Comparable raises are included for the vice president, the House speaker, all federal judges and U.S. attorneys.

Sen. Clements (D-Ky) acting majority leader, said the Senate probably will take up its version of the pay raise next week.

The bill approved by a heavy majority in the Senate Judiciary Committee would give members of Congress a $7,500 increase to $22,500.

Sen. KeKfauver (D-Tenn), who headed a subcommittee which conducted hearings on the question, said today he believes the Senate will pass its bill "by a substantial margin."

He said "at the moment" his plan is to stick to the Senate bill, "then work out our differences in conference."

Sen. George (D-Ga), dean of the Senate and its president pro tem, and Sen. Bridges (R-NH), senior Republican member, support the raise to $22,500.

However, one senator who has backed a pay boost said his mail is running heavily against it and that, while visiting in his state last week, he found people "bitter" about it. This senator, asking not to be named, indicated he may vote "no."

He was immediately taken to his home and later removed to the hospital, where his condition Thursday was considerably improved.

Scioto, Ashville, Williamsport Win

Scioto, Ashville and Williamsport tossers took the laurels Wednesday night as the 1955 Pickaway County Basketball Tournament moved through its second night of play.

More than 1,300 fans were at the Fairgrounds Coliseum to watch Scioto beat Saltcreek, Ashville down Jackson, and Williamsport subdue New New Halland.

Next play in the tourney is scheduled for the Coliseum Friday night, when four games will thin out the list of survivors.

Panel Slated To Postpone Slash In Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Cooper (D-Tenn) said today the House Ways and Means Committee will act next week on President Eisenhower's request to postpone $3 billion in tax cuts.

The committee is expected to approve by a big margin Eisenhower's recommendation for a one-year postponement of these tax cuts now set automatically for April 1:

(1) From 52 to 47 per cent in the corporation income tax rate, amounting to about $2 billion annually; and (2) about $1 billion in excise tax rates on automobiles, cigarettes, liquor, gasoline, beer and wine.

Meanwhile, it was reliably reported, key Democrats planned a strategy huddle Saturday to consider two questions likely to be much more explosive:

1. A proposal by some Ways and Means members for a drive now to cut individual income taxes for everybody.

2. A move by others to seek repeal of a controversial tax cut on income from dividends, included last year's Republican - sponsored general tax revision bill.

Some committee members have suggested one or both of these proposals might be tacked onto the tax extension request.

A-Test Scheduled For Tomorrow

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — After three postponements, chances for the opening of the 1955 atomic test series tomorrow appears bright because the Atomic Energy Commission has an ace in the hole.

The AEC disclosed yesterday that, beginning tomorrow, it has a "les sensitive" shot ready for detonation in addition to the one which has thrice been canceled since Tuesday.

The original shot was slated to be exploded from a 500-foot tower on Yucca Flat with 1,100 military men in trenches 4,000 yards away.

Continuing cloudiness and high winds aloft, coupled with sprinkles of rain in the Las Vegas area, forced the third postponement.

Which Should Ohioans Buy: Brains, Bricks?

State's Mental Health Program Under Study By General Assembly

COLUMBUS (AP) — Should Ohio spend more money for professional treatment for its mentally ill in attempts to cure and send home prolonged confinement cases?

That was the question which faced Ohio legislators today as they prepared to go home after the seventh work week of the 101st General Assembly.

The problems of thementallyill were brought before the legislators yesterday by a Kansas mental health expert in an address before a joint session of the Legislature.

And that was his proposition: Shall we continue to build "piles of bricks and mortar" to house the mentally ill, or shall we recruit enough capable physicians and psychiatrists to treat them so they return to society as useful citizens? He added: "Shall we buy bricks or brains?"

IN A 30-MINUTE speech, delivered on the Legislature's invitation, he recounted cases where long-time inmates of Kansas' mental institutions returned to society after brief counseling with trained mental physicians.

It cost Kansas a lot of money, Dr. Menninger said, to put treatment instead of confinement into effect—about four times as much as the state had been spending. But, he said, citizens of Kansas took into consideration they were trying to cure human disease; trying to bring fellow citizens back to useful existence.

Legislators were impressed, particularly since they have been asked to approve bond issues for up to $150 million to build new hospitals for Ohio mentally ill.

And Ohio's director of mental hygiene and correction, Dr. John D. Porterfield, said he agrees with Dr. Menninger's recommendation. He said an Ohio building program would be aimed at replacing outmoded buildings rather than erecting new buildings.

Probably the top bill passed in the Legislature yesterday was a Senate measure to increase the minimum and maximum salaries of county auditors. The Senate approved and sent to the House a bill increasing county auditors' minimum pay from $2,600 to $3,600 a year and their top salaries from $9,000 to $10,000 a year. The minimum increase would apply only in the state's smallest counties; the increase in the maximum would apply in the eight metropolitan counties.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House bills to permit physically and mentally able 70-year-olds to continue on the state payroll and to increase pay allowed shorthand court reporters from $15 to $18 a day. Top annual pay for such reporters would be $6,000 a year in counties with two or more common pleas judges and $4,800 in others.

Navy Plans Probe Of Report On Sub

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Navy plans an investigation to give "proper evaluation" to the reported sighting of an unidentified submarine near Fort Pierce, Fla., Wednesday morning.

Two Coast Guardsmen, sent out to investigate an "orange glow" at sea, reported they approached within "a quarter of a mile or less" of the object about 11 miles southeast of Fort Pierce before they lost sight of it.

6 Firemen Killed In Baltimore Blaze

Two bodies were recovered. It appeared it would take some time to reach the other four.

The men were trapped as they battled a 9-alarm fire last night in a building in East Baltimore.

Socialist Almost Lines Up New Government In France

PARIS (AP) — Christian Pineau completed a proposed government lineup early today but within a few hours three of his 36 nominees withdrew at their party's request. All were followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Their action sent Pineau scurrying for replacements. He had hoped to ask the National Assembly tomorrow to approve his Cabinet and confirm him as the nation's first Socialist premier since 1947.

Those who withdrew were Edward Corniglion-Molinier, who had been named to the justice ministry; Pierre Ferri, named to the ministry of posts, telephone and telegraph; and Andre Gaubert, secretary of state for commerce.

All are members of the Republican Union for Social Action (URAS).

Two Gaullists chose to stay in Pineau's government — Maurice Lemaire, minister for reconstruction, and Diomede Catroux, secretary of state for air. Both held the same positions in Pierre Mendes-France's government.

* * *

THE WITHDRAWALS left the other 15 ministries divided this way among five parties; socialists 4, Catholic Popular Republican Movement (MRP) 4, Radical Socialists 4, UNRAS 1, and the small leftist Union of Democratic and Socialists Resistance (UDSR) 2.

Without Gaubert, this was the lineup of the other 18 secretaries of state, whose posts are below ministerial rank but are part of the government: Socialists 6, Radical Socialists 5, MRP 4, URAS 1 and USDR 2.

Before the URAS defection, the most favorable estimates had given Pineau less than 320 supporting votes in the 627-member chamber. With likely abstentions, that should have assured his confirmation but promised a shaky government with a brief life.

Pineau was called in by President Rene Coty Monday to try to form France's 21st postliberation cabinet—a task in which both Antoine Pinay, conservative independent, and Pierre Pflimlin of the MRP had failed.

If Pineau wins assembly approval, he will be the first Socialist premier since Paul Ramadier's government resigned in November 1947. Since the 1951 elections, the Socialists have even refusd to serve in any cabinet.

Farmer Guilty Of Chopping Ring In Tree

Elon Farren, 77, of Rt. 1, Wilmington, was found guilty yesterday by a common pleas court jury of maliciously injuring a maple tree in Sugar Grove Cemetery.

The tree is located near a mausoleum which Farren built. It houses the remains of his two wives, a brother and a sister. He claims a tree limb fell against the front of the mausoleum about 7 years ago, that another limb fell on the roof about four years ago, and that the maple threatens to fall and damage the structure.

Judge Charles R. Kirk withheld sentence pending appeal. Maximum penalty for the offense is a fine of $25 to $500 and a jail term not exceeding 30 days.

The defense presented no testimony. Farren's attorneys claimed the Revised Code of Ohio does not make the charge for which he was indicted an offense against the state.

Mrs. Henry Hague II, cemetery secretary and wife of the cemetery superintendent, testified she tried to stop Farren from girdling the tree with the ax last October. She said he threatened her with the ax and then continued to chop away.

Ammer Refuses To Wait For Long Period

Independent Firms Ask Time, Report; March Date Likely

Many of the state's larger independent telephone companies have asked for delay in a Public Utilitis Commission hearing on a controversial rate increase provision, The Herald learned here Wednesday night.

At least 28 of the independent firms, including the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company, reportedly asked the PUCO for a postponement of "at least three weeks." There are approximately 100 independent phone companies in the state, many of them small organizations.

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer, when notified of the companies' request for a delay, warned that he will not agree to any prolonged wait for the hearing, originally set for next Thursday. However, he said he would "be willing to go along" if a delay of only a few weeks is granted.

March 10 has been unofficially mentioned as possible new date for the hearing.

* * *

AT THAT hearing, the independent firms will be called upon to defend legality of a rate provision under which a long distance rate increase granted the Ohio Bell Telephone Company gives automatic increases in the same amount to the independents.

Ohio Bell was granted a hike in long distance rates last January 1, and it was later learned Ohio Consolidated, and presumably many other independents, raised their long distance tolls about the same time.

Ammer touched off the PUCO investigation when he protested specifically against the Ohio Consolidated increase. A member of the PUCO at that time said the apparent illegality of the provision had been overlooked until the commission received Ammer's request for a hearing.

From the original action against Ohio Consolidated, the case has now been expanded by the PUCO to involve all of the state's independents.

Senate Seen OKing Hike In Congress Pay

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leaders predicted today the Senate will follow the House lead in voting a substantial pay boost for members of Congress and federal judges.

The House voted 283-118 yesterday to give the 96 senators and 435 representatives a $10,000 annual boost to $25,000. Comparable raises are included for the vice president, the House speaker, all federal judges and U.S. attorneys.

Sen. Clements (D-Ky) acting majority leader, said the Senate probably will take up its version of the pay raise next week.

The bill approved by a heavy majority in the Senate Judiciary Committee would give members of Congress a $7,500 increase to $22,500.

Sen. KeKfauver (D-Tenn), who headed a subcommittee which conducted hearings on the question, said today he believes the Senate will pass its bill "by a substantial margin."

He said "at the moment" his plan is to stick to the Senate bill, "then work out our differences in conference."

Sen. George (D-Ga), dean of the Senate and its president pro tem, and Sen. Bridges (R-NH), senior Republican member, support the raise to $22,500.

However, one senator who has backed a pay boost said his mail is running heavily against it and that, while visiting in his state last week, he found people "bitter" about it. This senator, asking not to be named, indicated he may vote "no."

Ed Rector Patient At Mount Carmel

Rector, who lives in Williamsport, was stricken Tuesday night while attending a Blue Lodge inspection ceremony at the Masonic Temple in Williamsport.

He was immediately taken to his home and later removed to the hospital, where his condition Thursday was considerably improved.

Rector is especially well known through his participation in Masonic activities. He is secretary of Williamsport's Blue Lodge, Grand Treasurer of the Grand Council, and a Past Grand Master of the Grand Council.

Chauffeur, 50, Gives Tip In Rubinstein Case

Police Say 'Finger' Put On Possible Men Who Killed Playboy

NEW YORK (AP)—Police say frail, 50-year-old Herman Scholz has "fingered" the possible killers in the Serge Rubinstein case.

Scholz, picked up Tuesday, told how his own plan to kidnap Rubinstein, 46, for ransom was carried out without him and resulted in a "bungled" job that resulted in the strangle-slaying of the playboy-financier.

The quiet, mild - mannered Scholz, not quite five feet tall, has been a limousine-for-hire driver living an apparently sedate life in Whitestone, Queens, for the last 15 years. But, police said, he has an arrest record dating back to 1923, and authorities found a small arsenal in his home, assertedly cached against the day he hoped to become a big-time bank robber.

Scholz is being held in $25,000 bail as a witness in the Rubinstein murder. The high bail was set to keep him in custody and protect him from possible harm by underworld mobsters.

* * *

THE RUSSIAN-born Rubinstein, judged to have been worth about $10 million, was slain Jan. 27 in the bedroom of his 5th Avenue mansion. His pajama-clad body has been trussed with cord from a venetian blind and he had been gagged with adhesive tape.

Detectives said similar cord and tape were found in Scholz's home, where he lives with his wife and her parents.

Scholz also told of planning to kidnap gambler Frank Costello but of switching his plans in favor of Rubinstein, World War II draft dodger.

Police now are asking Scholz about the $38,000 robbery on Feb. 10, 1948, of the Bank of Manhattan branch in Whitestone and the $19,400 holdup of the Woodside Loan Assn. Jan. 2, 1951.

At the time of the Bank of Manhattan robbery, Scholz had a part-time job in a dry cleaning shop next to the bank.

Scholz was arrested March 30, 1923, in Sandusky, Ohio, under the name of Herman Schultz, then 19 years old, and accused of burglary. He was placed on probation.

On June 3 of the same year he drew a suspended reformatory sentence for larceny in Toledo.

Truman, Acheson Still In Accord

KANSAS CITY (AP)—After being out of office more than two years, Harry S Truman and his former secretary of state Dean Acheson are still in agreement.

Acheson, visiting the Trumans this week, appeared at a press conference with the former President yesterday.

Both feel Adlai Stevenson is the best choice for the 1956 Democratic presidential candidate.

Acheson declared the foreign policies of the Truman and Eisenhower administrations are basically the same. But he said the present policy is not being pursued "as rigorously or effectively" as the former.

Power Struggle May Produce New Sincerity

'It is hardly to be expected," he said, "that the Chinese Communists will renounce their ambitions. However, might they not renounce their efforts to realize their goals by force?"

Discussing the Russian situation, he said a distinction must always be made between the Soviet government and the Communist party.

"The time may come, I believe it will come," he said, "when Russians of stature will patriotically put first their national security and the welfare of their people.

"They will be unwilling to have that security and that welfare subordinated to the worldwide ambitions of international communism.

"If their point of view should prevail, then indeed there could be a basis for worthwhile negotiation and practical agreement between the United States and the new Russia."

* * *

THE SECRETARY did not speculate within what period of time "Russians of stature" might seize power from those whose first dedication, he said, is to 'international communism."

Dulles said the demotion of Georgi Malenkov as premier 10 days ago and the elevation of Nikolai Bulganin to succeed him provided "an extraordinary demonstration of despotic disarray."

"The prime minister of the Soviet state," he said, was preemptorily summoned to a high Soviet session and subjected to the public humiliation of hearing another read his resignation and his confession of 'my guilt.' "

The full significance of what happened is still obscure, Dulles said, and "perhaps the last act of the drama has not yet been played."

Rockefeller Sees Segregation Ending

CANTON (AP)—Winthrop Rockefeller, associated in philanthropic and civic activities, last night told the Canton Urban League, a group devoted to Negro advancement, that the Supreme Court's ruling against segregation in schools will bring about the most important changes in Negro status in recent times.

"I have confidence that the desegregation will work out," he declared. He added that "it is important that the transition takes place as rapidly as possible. But resistance will not be wiped out overnight."

Most Of Nation Has Mild Weather

CHICAGO (AP) -Light rain or snow fell in parts of the East and the Far West but dry and fairly mild winter weather prevailed in most of the country today.

The Weather Bureau reported no severe weather throughout the country. The coldest temperatures were in Wisconsin, where it was 1 below zero in Eau Claire.

Light snow fell in most of New England and interior sections of New York state while rain was reported southward through the middle and southern Atlantic states. Although snowfall amounts were light, snow on the ground measured 20 inches in Utica.

Switzerland Snubs Romanian Demand

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The Swiss government declared today the four anti-Communists who invaded the Romanian legation and killed a chauffeur would stand trial before the courts of this traditionally neutral nation.

A government statement said "under no circumstances" would the four be extradited, as demanded in bitter notes from the Red regime in Bucharest.

The statement asserted that the legation was situated on Swiss soil and despite its extraterritorial status the men would be tried here instead of Romania for the slaying.

State Education Board Bills Eyed

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio House Education Committee held a second hearing last night on three bills which would create a state board of education, a board authorized by the voters in 1953.

The bills appeared headed for a subcommittee which would be empowered to combine the best features of the three and report back to the full committee with a substitute measure. Before that happens, however, the full committee probably will be asked to vote on whether it wants an elected or appointive board.

'Ohio choice corn-fed beef" may be featured for Ohio consumers if plans of Ohio cattlemen develop as they hope.

Ohio cattle feeders have been seeking a label that will tell consumers that Ohio farmers produce choice beef. They want a labeling and grading program that will tell shoppers there is quality eating in every package carrying the label. Government grading is optional with meat packers.

A committee of feeders sought advice from a restaurant manager, a retail chain meat buyer, meat packers and market operators. The committee then voted to ask feeders in their counties to promote "Ohio corn-fed beef" of choice and prime grades.

A packer buyer told feeders that it is only in the last 25 years that choice beef has been widely distributed in this country. Twenty years ago about 75 percent of the meat sold was good grade and lower, he estimated. Today, 75 percent of it wil grade good or better.

Prepackaging is in the best interest of the beef industry a retail chain meat buyer said. It is one reason beef now accounts for 35 per cent of meat sales in their stores.

The shopper is boss at the meat counter and we must buy what she will buy from us, the retail buyer said. Their trade prefers a 600-pound choice beef carcass. "We buy very little prime beef because there is too much waste and we also stay away from choice carcasses that are overly fat," the buyer said.

Heifer beef of the same grade and with the same amount of fat is just as good as steer beef, packers and wholesale buyers agreed. However, heifer carcasses often carry more fat. Smaller heifer carcasses —500 pounds—seem most satisfactory.

Fertilized pastures produced $37.40 more beef per acre than unfertilized pastures, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee in citing tests by University of Minnesota agronomists and animal husbandmen.

Beef production on fertilized pastures at Rosemount, Minnesota agricultural experiment farm, was worth $66.46 per acre, compared to $29.06 on the unfertilized fields, according to the research men.

The fertilized pastures produced 309 pounds of beef per acre, as against 138 pounds on the untreated pastures. Fertilized pastures gave 177 steer days per acre; unfertilized, 121 days per acre.

While there was little difference in the weight of individual steers, the fertilized pastures carried about 50 per cent more animals per acre.

A combination spray of lindane and rotenone will control cattle grubs, lice and mange, according to Lyle Goleman, Ohio State University extension entomologist.

He recommended spraying animals with a mixture of 4 pounds of 25 percent wettable lindane powder, 7½ pounds of rotenone and 2 pounds of household detergent in 100 gallons of water. Use 1 gallon of the spray per animal; but do not spray calves younger than 3 months, he cautioned.

Cattle grub bumps will continue to appear on animals' backs during February and March. Lice and mange are most serious during winter too.

One treatment will control lice and mange for the winter, however, it will require additional rotenone sprays every 4 weeks to control grubs. Use the same spray mixture without the lindane for additional grub sprays and repeat spraying as long as grub bumps are present.

Hair balls on wire fences and cattle rubbing against mangers, fences and other objects are a clue that lice or mange may be present. If cattle have lice, a farmer can find them in folds of skin on animals' necks and withers. Mange mites are so small they can't be seen without a microscope.

Columbus To Study Club Car Bus Plan

COLUMBUS (AP)—Dr. Ivon W. Ulrey, city public utilities director, yesterday said officials of the Columbus Transit Co. plan to study Cincinnati's "club car bus" plan, for possible use here.

The system uses reserved seats on express buses which pick up passengers at their homes and deliver them to downtown stops.

100 Aged Women Die In Jap Fire

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP) — About 100 aged women died in flaming agony today when a flash fire roared through a Roman Catholic old ladies' home before dawn.

There were only 46 survivors, police said. Nearly all were burned or injured in jumps from the second floor of their two-story wooden dormitory, declared a fire hazard in 1953. Several were in critical condition. The inmates were mainly pitiful old Japanese women without families. Their ages ranged from 60 to 96.

Toledo Virus OutbreakEyed

COLUMBUS (AP)—A team of state health officials headed by Dr. T.W. Mahoney has been sent to investigate reported virus disturbances in the Toledo area.

Dr. Ralph E. Dwork, director of health, said preliminary investigation showed no reason to suspect that either the water or milk supply was the cause of the virus outbreak.

He said laboratory studies were being conducted at the state department of health laboratory here to determine, if possible, the cause of the outbreak.

Tait Says Classes In First Aid Still Lack Qualified Instructor

Pickaway County Civil Defense Director Bernard Tait has revealed a snag in plans to resume first-aid classes for the district.

Tait's first effort to set up first-aid training courses met with widespread success and promised for a time to lead a revival of civil defense activity throughout the county. Later, however, attendance fell off sharply and the classes were discontinued.

The CD director's current efforts to resume the training is due in part to the nationwide review of civilian preparations for any wartime emergency. International tension growing out of the Formosan situation led national CD leaders to call for a quiet checkup on all sections of the country.

Reports, as expected, are far from encouraging. And Pickaway County's CD organization, like so many others, remains virtually stalled.

* * *

TAIT EXPLAINED that a Red Cross instructor will have to be obtained for the first-aid classes if those who attend expect to receive certificates at the end of their training. Instructors, on the other hand, have been reluctant to start the courses here because of the low ebb of public interest in all matters relating to CD planning.

Tait said a large supply of first-aid equipment is on hand, "everything from stretchers to surgeons' scalpels", thanks to money allocated by the city and county in a matching fund arrangement with the state and federal CD organizations.

While the first-aid classes will thus have to wait for a qualified instructor, CD films are already avaliable for showing in this district. Roger McLaughlin, Tait said, would operate the projector purchased by the district CD organization whenever civic groups, clubs and similar organizations ask to see the training films.

Groups interested should contact Tait for arrangements.

Meanwhile, the county's CD chief again voiced confidence in his plan to put a big air raid siren atop Circleville's city hall. Members of city council have been hesitant to approve the idea, but Tait said he felt they would give the necessary permission when the siren is delivered. Delivery, Tait estimated, should be sometime around the middle of March.

The CD chief he talked with Councilman Richard Penn about replacing the bell now atop city hall with the new siren.

"He asked me if I thought it was best to have the bell taken down and the siren put in its place, and I told him I felt it was a good idea," Tait said.

New Turnpike Ruins Truck Fixit Shop

The Ohio 14 truck Stop, owned by Clyde Bailey, went on the auction block yesterday for non-payment of federal taxes. Bailey said the pike's 22-mile section west of Youngstown, which opened last Dec. 1, ruined him.

Bailey said he handled more than 100 trucks a day before the section opening, but now the same trucks head for the pike's Eastgate entrance to make connections with the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Britain To Make Hydrogen Bombs

LONDON (AP)—Britain announced today she will develop hydrogen bombs.

A white paper listing government defense plans said:

"The United Kingdom has the ability to produce thermonuclear weapons and after fully considering all implications of this step the government have thought it their duty to proceed with their development and production."

Britain has the atomic bomb. The United States and presumably Russia are the only powers now possessing the vastly more destructive hydrogen bomb.

Sheriff Loses In Damage Suit

AKRON (AP) — A common pleas court jury returned a $12,500 verdict yesterday against Sheriff Raymond Woodard and the National Surety Corp. which bonds him.

Joseph P. Ayers of near Stow brought suit, contending a special deputy, Jerome A. McCarthy of North Canton, attacked him at an industrial plant The law makes the sheriff responsible for actions of his deputies.

Perry Courthouse Sale Is Approved

COLUMBUS (AP)—State representatives gave Perry County commissioners authority to sell the old courthouse in Somerset, but refused a member permission to conduct an immediate auction.

The House yesterday passed, 118-2, and sent to the Senate a bill by Rep. David J. Lewis (R-Perry) authorizing sale of the ancient building. The Perry County courthouse now is in New Lexington.

Rep. Neil S. Robinson (R-Richland), an auctioneer, said that the Somerset courthouse was worth about $40,000.

He promptly called for bids and received one for $5,000 when Rep. A. G. Lancione (D-Belmont), presiding, ruled it out of order.

Chauffeur, 50, Gives Tip In Rubinstein Case

NEW YORK (AP)—Police say frail, 50-year-old Herman Scholz has "fingered" the possible killers in the Serge Rubinstein case.

Scholz, picked up Tuesday, told how his own plan to kidnap Rubinstein, 46, for ransom was carried out without him and resulted in a "bungled" job that resulted in the strangle-slaying of the playboy-financier.

The quiet, mild - mannered Scholz, not quite five feet tall, has been a limousine-for-hire driver living an apparently sedate life in Whitestone, Queens, for the last 15 years. But, police said, he has an arrest record dating back to 1923, and authorities found a small arsenal in his home, assertedly cached against the day he hoped to become a big-time bank robber.

Scholz is being held in $25,000 bail as a witness in the Rubinstein murder. The high bail was set to keep him in custody and protect him from possible harm by underworld mobsters.

* * *

THE RUSSIAN-born Rubinstein, judged to have been worth about $10 million, was slain Jan. 27 in the bedroom of his 5th Avenue mansion. His pajama-clad body has been trussed with cord from a venetian blind and he had been gagged with adhesive tape.

Detectives said similar cord and tape were found in Scholz's home, where he lives with his wife and her parents.

Scholz also told of planning to kidnap gambler Frank Costello but of switching his plans in favor of Rubinstein, World War II draft dodger.

Police now are asking Scholz about the $38,000 robbery on Feb. 10, 1948, of the Bank of Manhattan branch in Whitestone and the $19,400 holdup of the Woodside Loan Assn. Jan. 2, 1951.

At the time of the Bank of Manhattan robbery, Scholz had a part-time job in a dry cleaning shop next to the bank.

Scholz was arrested March 30, 1923, in Sandusky, Ohio, under the name of Herman Schultz, then 19 years old, and accused of burglary. He was placed on probation.

On June 3 of the same year he drew a suspended reformatory sentence for larceny in Toledo.

Rockefeller Sees Segregation Ending

CANTON (AP)—Winthrop Rockefeller, associated in philanthropic and civic activities, last night told the Canton Urban League, a group devoted to Negro advancement, that the Supreme Court's ruling against segregation in schools will bring about the most important changes in Negro status in recent times.

"I have confidence that the desegregation will work out," he declared. He added that "it is important that the transition takes place as rapidly as possible. But resistance will not be wiped out overnight."

Most Of Nation Has Mild Weather

CHICAGO (AP) -Light rain or snow fell in parts of the East and the Far West but dry and fairly mild winter weather prevailed in most of the country today.

The Weather Bureau reported no severe weather throughout the country. The coldest temperatures were in Wisconsin, where it was 1 below zero in Eau Claire.

Light snow fell in most of New England and interior sections of New York state while rain was reported southward through the middle and southern Atlantic states. Although snowfall amounts were light, snow on the ground measured 20 inches in Utica.

Power Struggle May Produce New Sincerity

tions Security Council bid to discuss a Formosa cease-fire.

'It is hardly to be expected," he said, "that the Chinese Communists will renounce their ambitions. However, might they not renounce their efforts to realize their goals by force?"

Discussing the Russian situation, he said a distinction must always be made between the Soviet government and the Communist party.

"The time may come, I believe it will come," he said, "when Russians of stature will patriotically put first their national security and the welfare of their people.

"They will be unwilling to have that security and that welfare subordinated to the worldwide ambitions of international communism.

"If their point of view should prevail, then indeed there could be a basis for worthwhile negotiation and practical agreement between the United States and the new Russia."

THE SECRETARY did not speculate within what period of time "Russians of stature" might seize power from those whose first dedication, he said, is to 'international communism."

Dulles said the demotion of Georgi Malenkov as premier 10 days ago and the elevation of Nikolai Bulganin to succeed him provided "an extraordinary demonstration of despotic disarray."

"The prime minister of the Soviet state," he said, was preemptorily summoned to a high Soviet session and subjected to the public humiliation of hearing another read his resignation and his confession of 'my guilt.' "

The full significance of what happened is still obscure, Dulles said, and "perhaps the last act of the drama has not yet been played."

Switzerland Snubs Romanian Demand

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The Swiss government declared today the four anti-Communists who invaded the Romanian legation and killed a chauffeur would stand trial before the courts of this traditionally neutral nation.

A government statement said "under no circumstances" would the four be extradited, as demanded in bitter notes from the Red regime in Bucharest.

The statement asserted that the legation was situated on Swiss soil and despite its extraterritorial status the men would be tried here instead of Romania for the slaying.

State Education Board Bills Eyed

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio House Education Committee held a second hearing last night on three bills which would create a state board of education, a board authorized by the voters in 1953.

The bills appeared headed for a subcommittee which would be empowered to combine the best features of the three and report back to the full committee with a substitute measure. Before that happens, however, the full committee probably will be asked to vote on whether it wants an elected or appointive board.

A combination spray of lindane and rotenone will control cattle grubs, lice and mange, according to Lyle Goleman, Ohio State University extension entomologist.

He recommended spraying animals with a mixture of 4 pounds of 25 percent wettable lindane powder, 7½ pounds of rotenone and 2 pounds of household detergent in 100 gallons of water. Use 1 gallon of the spray per animal; but do not spray calves younger than 3 months, he cautioned.

Cattle grub bumps will continue to appear on animals' backs during February and March. Lice and mange are most serious during winter too.

One treatment will control lice and mange for the winter, however, it will require additional rotenone sprays every 4 weeks to control grubs. Use the same spray mixture without the lindane for additional grub sprays and repeat spraying as long as grub bumps are present.

Hair balls on wire fences and cattle rubbing against mangers, fences and other objects are a clue that lice or mange may be present. If cattle have lice, a farmer can find them in folds of skin on animals' necks and withers. Mange mites are so small they can't be seen without a microscope.

Columbus To Study Club Car Bus Plan

COLUMBUS (AP)—Dr. Ivon W. Ulrey, city public utilities director, yesterday said officials of the Columbus Transit Co. plan to study Cincinnati's "club car bus" plan, for possible use here.

The system uses reserved seats on express buses which pick up passengers at their homes and deliver them to downtown stops.

100 Aged Women Die In Jap Fire

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP) — About 100 aged women died in flaming agony today when a flash fire roared through a Roman Catholic old ladies' home before dawn.

There were only 46 survivors, police said. Nearly all were burned or injured in jumps from the second floor of their two-story wooden dormitory, declared a fire hazard in 1953. Several were in critical condition. The inmates were mainly pitiful old Japanese women without families. Their ages ranged from 60 to 96.

Toledo Virus OutbreakEyed

COLUMBUS (AP)—A team of state health officials headed by Dr. T.W. Mahoney has been sent to investigate reported virus disturbances in the Toledo area.

Dr. Ralph E. Dwork, director of health, said preliminary investigation showed no reason to suspect that either the water or milk supply was the cause of the virus outbreak.

He said laboratory studies were being conducted at the state department of health laboratory here to determine, if possible, the cause of the outbreak.

Tait Says Classes In First Aid Still Lack Qualified Instructor

Pickaway County Civil Defense Director Bernard Tait has revealed a snag in plans to resume first-aid classes for the district.

Tait's first effort to set up first-aid training courses met with widespread success and promised for a time to lead a revival of civil defense activity throughout the county. Later, however, attendance fell off sharply and the classes were discontinued.

The CD director's current efforts to resume the training is due in part to the nationwide review of civilian preparations for any wartime emergency. International tension growing out of the Formosan situation led national CD leaders to call for a quiet checkup on all sections of the country.

Reports, as expected, are far from encouraging. And Pickaway County's CD organization, like so many others, remains virtually stalled.

* * *

TAIT EXPLAINED that a Red Cross instructor will have to be obtained for the first-aid classes if those who attend expect to receive certificates at the end of their training. Instructors, on the other hand, have been reluctant to start the courses here because of the low ebb of public interest in all matters relating to CD planning.

Tait said a large supply of first-aid equipment is on hand, "everything from stretchers to surgeons' scalpels", thanks to money allocated by the city and county in a matching fund arrangement with the state and federal CD organizations.

While the first-aid classes will thus have to wait for a qualified instructor, CD films are already avaliable for showing in this district. Roger McLaughlin, Tait said, would operate the projector purchased by the district CD organization whenever civic groups, clubs and similar organizations ask to see the training films.

Groups interested should contact Tait for arrangements.

Meanwhile, the county's CD chief again voiced confidence in his plan to put a big air raid siren atop Circleville's city hall. Members of city council have been hesitant to approve the idea, but Tait said he felt they would give the necessary permission when the siren is delivered. Delivery, Tait estimated, should be sometime around the middle of March.

The CD chief said he talked with Councilman Richard Penn about replacing the bell now atop city hall with the new siren.

"He asked me if I thought it was best to have the bell taken down and the siren put in its place, and I told him I felt it was a good idea," Tait said.

New Turnpike Ruins Truck Fixit Shop

The Ohio 14 truck Stop, owned by Clyde Bailey, went on the auction block yesterday for non-payment of federal taxes. Bailey said the pike's 22-mile section west of Youngstown, which opened last Dec. 1, ruined him.

Bailey said he handled more than 100 trucks a day before the section opening, but now the same trucks head for the pike's Eastgate entrance to make connections with the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Britain To Make Hydrogen Bombs

LONDON (AP)—Britain announced today she will develop hydrogen bombs.

A white paper listing government defense plans said:

"The United Kingdom has the ability to produce thermonuclear weapons and after fully considering all implications of this step the government have thought it their duty to proceed with their development and production."

Britain has the atomic bomb. The United States and presumably Russia are the only powers now possessing the vastly more destructive hydrogen bomb.

Perry Courthouse Sale Is Approved

COLUMBUS (AP)—State representatives gave Perry County commissioners authority to sell the old courthouse in Somerset, but refused a member permission to conduct an immediate auction.

The House yesterday passed, 118-2, and sent to the Senate a bill by Rep. David J. Lewis (R-Perry) authorizing sale of the ancient building. The Perry County courthouse now is in New Lexington.

Rep. Neil S. Robinson (R-Richland), an auctioneer, said that the Somerset courthouse was worth about $40,000.

He promptly called for bids and received one for $5,000 when Rep. A. G. Lancione (D-Belmont), presiding, ruled it out of order.

Insurance Firm Gives Figures On Rise, Fall Of Mortality Rates

Current efforts to set up a Community Chest in Pickaway County have indirectly given special importance to the latest authoritative reports on America's health, and the progress being made in fighting individual diseases.

In recognition of this fact, local leaders of the 1955 Heart Fund Drive recently drew attention to 1954 reports by the Circleville and Pickaway County health departments. Both local reports showed heart disease to be the foremost killer by a wide margin, followed by cerebral hemorrhage and cancer, in that order.

It was also noted that heart disease led to more deaths in Columbus last year than any other cause.

Meanwhile, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, in a nationwide report for 11 months of 1954, cited a marked decline in the number of deaths due to tuberculosis, influenza and pneumonia. The company's statisticians said the nation's death rate due to polio was about the same as in 1953, although there was an increase in the number of cases last year.

* * *

NATIONWIDE, Metropolitan found the cancer mortality rate about the same as the 1953 report. The insurance firm's data indicated only small changes in the mortality rate due to heart ailments.

However, in reference to all its figures, it should be emphasized that the insurance firm's report dealt almost entirely with mortality rate increases or declines from the previous year. It does not, therefore, seek to classify the different diseases on the total number of fatal cases reported.

As an illustration, while only minor changes were found in the mortality rate due to the various heart ailments, the report does not challenge the claim that heart disease caused more deaths than any other disease in 1954.

All in all, the insurance company had cheering news for the general public. Health of the American people last year, it said, was the best on record, and excellent prospects are seen for continued health progress in 1955.

The insurance company's report in part follows:

In 1954 the national death rate dropped to an all-time low of approximately 9.2 per 1,000 population, or 5 percent under the previous low point registered the year before. Only a decade earlier, in 1944, the death rate was one sixth higher, namely 10.6 per 1,000 population. The country has now experienced death rates below 10 per 1,000 for seven years in succession.

The unusually favorable mortality in 1954, which is based on the experience for the first 11 months, reflected in part an absence of any major outbreaks of respiratory disease, it was observed.

"Noteworthy also is the fact that in 1954 the death rate from tuberculosis fell to about 10 per 100,000 population," the statisticians report. "Thus, in a single year, mortality from tuberculosis was reduced by approximately 20 percent. As recently as 1951, tuberculosis mortality in the United States was twice as high as it was in 1954."

"Exceptionally favorable also was the record for influenza and pneumonia. The death rate from these causes was only about 25 per 100,000 in 1954, or one fourth less than the rate for the preceding year, the early months of which had seen an outbreak of influenza.

* * *

"THE DEATH rate from poliomyelitis in 1954 was about the same as in 1953, although there was a rise in the number of cases last year."

The reported number of cases of measles and of whooping cough during 1954 was about 50 percent greater than in the year before. However, deaths from these conditions, as well as from scarlet fever and diphtheria, remained at a very low level during the year, according to the statisticians.

"There have been no significant changes in the death rate from the major chronic diseases," the statisticians pointed out. "The cancer mortality for 1954 was practically unchanged from the year before, while the death rate from cardiovascular-renal conditions showed a small reduction.

"Mortality from arteriosclerotic heart diseases, which includes coronary artery disease, remained at about the same level in the past two years. The death record from diabetes in 1954 was somewhat lower than in 1953."

The fatal accident situation in our country improved somewhat during the year, decreases in death rates being recorded for motor vehicle accidents, home accidents, and occupational accidents. On the other hand, the homiide rate rose somewhat and suicides remained at about the same level reached in 1953.

New Foot Patrol Curtails Crime

CLEVELAND (AP)—There has not been one robbery, burglary, purse snatching or assault on a woman in a two-mile-square Cleveland area since a 25-man foot patrol was organized there, police say.

Police Chief Frank W. Story, reporting on the experiment yesterday, did not make public just where the district was but said it was "usually one of the worst" in the city. Between Jan. 1 and Jan. 27, before the foot squad started, there were nine robberies, eight burglaries, seven purse snatchings and 10 assaults in the area.

$650 Million Issue Urged By Utility

NEW YORK (AP)—Directors of the giant American Telephone and Telegraph Co. have recommended a record new issue of $650 million in convertible debentures and declared the usual quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share on its capital stock, payable April 15.

This is the largest single financing since the authorization of $625 million in December, 1953. Only $602½ million of the total authorized were issued, however.

The new financing proposal will be voted on by stockholders at the annual meeting April 20.

Finnish Ballerina Recalls Escape From Russian Bombs

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Finland's contribution to Hollywood is lovely as Taina Elg, who learned to be a ballerina after escaping Russian willowy figure, long dark-blonde hair and a fresh, shiny-cheeked face.

As far as she knows and according to film historians, she is the first acting importation from Finland. This seems strange, since Hollywood has acquired many Scandinavian stars, especially from Sweden.

"I don't know why it is," said Taina. "We certainly hrave an excellent threater in Finland and many good actors. Perhaps it is the language. It is quite difficult for Finns to learn English. Finnish is derived from Scandinavian or Russian; it goes 'way back to early ages, the same as Hungarian."

Taina's tangle with English turned out successfully. She speaks it with scarcely an accent, having begun to learn when she went with thre Sadler's Wells ballet troupe in begun to learn when she went with the Sadler's Wells ballet troupe in London.

Taina spoke hesitantly of her early years in Finland. She grew up at a time when that industrious country was ravaged by war with Russia.

Sweden for three months with a group of Finnish children and to Norway for a similar period," she said. "It was partly to escape the Russian bombs, but also so we could eat. There was a danger of tuberculosis if children didn't get the right nourishment."

It was during the Swedish visit that Taina got her first start toward fame. Ever since she had seen the Monte Carlo ballet at 6 she had wanted to be a dancer. She was 10 when she visited Sweden and began taking ballet lessons there. She continued them when she returned to Helsinki, studying for six years at the Finnish Opera.

She danced with the company for a year at the Grand Theater in Stockholm, making such a hit that she was awarded a scholarship with England's famed Sadler's Wells. After her studies there, she couldn't get a labor permit to dance in England, so she joined the Monte Carlo ballet, appearing all over Europe and in the United States.

MGM producer Edwin Knopf saw her at a party in London and tabbed her as a film prospect.

She was brought here a year ago and has spent most of her time in diction, acting, singing and dancing lessons. She played a role as Lana Turner's handmaiden in "The Prodigal" and will do a similar chore in "Diane." MGM promises big things for her.

WASHINGTON (AP)—He didn't say yes and he didn't say no. That sums up Secretary of State Dulles' reply to the important question: Will the Red Chinese be allowed to have Quemoy and Matsu Islands?

For months the Eisenhower administration's position on that question has been vague. It was still vague after Dulles finished talking about it in a New York speech last night.

Since he didn't make it off the cuff but had plenty of time to prepare it, his vagueness can be considered deliberate. Why? Either because the administration hasn't made up its mind, doesn't want to tell the Reds or wants elbow room for horsetrading.

Dulles' words can be interpreted this way:

1. The United States may fight—Dulles didn't say it would—to defend those islands if the Red Chinese try to take them by force.

2. If the Reds play nice, stop talking about invading Formosa and agree to a cease-fire, they may be allowed to have Quemoy and Matsu.

Chiang Kai-shek, American ally, has his main forces on Formosa and the nearby Pescadores Islands, 100 miles across water from the Red Chinese mainland. He has other forces scattered among islands close to the mainland.

The United States is pledged to defend Formosa and the Pescadores under a Senate - approved treaty with Chiang. As Dulles said last night, this pledge does not extend to any other Chiang-held islands.

But Eisenhower could, if he thought them necessary to the defense of Formosa, defend the other islands. This power was given him in a special resolution approved by Congress.

He decided the Tachen Islands, 200 miles northwest of Formosa, were not necessary for the latter's defense. So last week Chiang withdrew his troops from the Tachens and let the Reds have them.

But what of Quemoy and Matsu? They're close to the mainland and on a direct line between big mainland ports and Formosa. In the hands of the Reds they could serve as stepping stones for a Formosa invasion.

Dulles said:

"The United States has no commitment and no purpose to defend the coastal positions as such." Then, almost wistfully, he wondered whether the Reds "might not renounce their efforts to realize their goals by force." And he added he hoped the Reds' announced decision to take Formosa was "not irrevocable."

But he talked dimly of the idea of letting the Reds have Quemoy and Matsu merely for the asking. He said, "It is doubtful this would serve either the cause of peace or the cause of freedom." Nothing, in so many words, was final in what he said.

Liquor Staff Cut

COLUMBUS (AP) — A decline in liquor sales will force layoff of 50 to 60 state store clerks effective March 1, according to Liquor Director William C. Bryant.

Akron Man Wondering About Justice

AKRON (AP)—George Hoover figured turnabout was fair play, but the cops figured differently.

Several months ago, Hoover, a 32-year-old former Air Force pilot, left his car motor running while he went into a restaurant for a cup of coffee. The police turned off his motor, took his keys and ordered a tow truck. Hoover went back to his car in time to prevent its being towed away, but he said he had to argue to get his keys back.

Yesterday, passing the same restaurant, Hoover saw a police cruiser parked in front with the motor running and two officers inside drinking coffee.

Hoover took the cruiser's keys, went into the restaurant and waited for his revenge. Three officers were unhappy when they discovered their keys were gone.

"I let them sweat it out for about 10 minutes," Hoover said, "then told them I'd do them a favor and gave them the keys."

The officers arrested Hoover for tampering with a motor vehicle. After four hours in jail he was released on $300 bond. He pleaded innocent and asked for a jury trial. To top it off, while Hoover was in jail, the police had his car towed to a garage.

Belt Conveyor Seen As Aid To Economy

COLUMBUS (AP) — The proposed 100-mile cargo-hauling Lake Erie-to-Ohio River belt conveyor was held out to a legislative committee last night as a shot in the arm to Youngstown's economy.

The statement to the Ohio House Commerce and Transportation Committee came from Kenneth Lloyd, secretary of the Mahoning Valley Industrial Council. The committee held its second hearing on the question of whether the Riverlake Belt Conveyor Lines, Inc., should be granted public utility status.

Riverlake wants that status, which carries with it the right of eminent domain, in order to get a right-of-way for its novel transportation line designed to carry iron ore and coal.

Lloyd told the committee some 15,500 persons are available for work in the Youngstown area. Construction of the belt line would require services of 5,000 construction workers for three years and its operation would require 1,500 workers from that time on, he added.

Committee Chairman Louis J. Schneider (R-Hamilton) scheduled the next hearing on the controversial bill for next Tuesday night. At that time, the last of the bill's supporters will be heard along with the first opponent.

Bad Weather Helps Some Businesses

Heavy Overcoat, Fuel Oil Salesmen Happy Over Severe Winter

NEW YORK (AP)—The weatherman—who gets blamed for almost everything—is getting some friendly pats today from industries that fared less profitably in other years when the winters were more on the sissy side.

It's been a good winter for the makers and sellers of heavy overcoats, rubbers and galoshes. Some coach companies have gone from red to black ink. Fuel oil producers and distributors are happy. And those who sell natural gas, especially in the industrial Midwest, are fat and sassy after several lean winters.

Not that everyone in business likes the weatherman. Merchants in many cities for which snow and ice storms have shown a particular preference in recent weeks blame the weatherman for store sales dropping blow the year ago figur.

How weather can ruin or bless merchandising plans is shown in last week's figures. New York department stores report sales off three per cent because the weather kept people home. San Francisco, with better days, had a sales increase of six per cent above the year ago figures.

Chain stores and mail order houses report big gains in sales last month, as merchandise associated with cold weather moved freely. The average gain for the group was around nine per cent. But for the mail order houses the increase averaged 15 per cent above a year ago. Maybe folk stayed home because of the bad weather and shopped through the postman.

Fuel peddlers have had some sorry winters in recent years and talked gloomily of climatic changes and the disappearance of the old-fashioned "real" winter.

But this year the American Petroleum Institute reports that cold weather has reduced the big stocks of fuel oils, to the industry's joy.

And officials of the Columbia Gas System, which serves the industrial Midwest where winter has been severe this year, report gas distributors through the area are having "a wonderful sales year."

Transportation companies view the winter with mixed emotions. Railroads in the coal mining section are happy to be hauling more cars. Snow on the tracks and ice on the highways are a costly drain, however, for some railways and truck companies.

More houses are going up this winter in some sections of the land, where the winter was open, the labor department reports. But where winter returned to its old-fashioned ways, starts were off.

Employment in general has dropped in areas where winter halted outdoor work.

Milk production is running slightly behind a year ago, because in many regions the cows haven't been getting out to pasture as they did in the sissy winters.

Egg prices have gone up, and one reason given is that cold weather has discouraged the biddies and also has kept some farmers from coming to town with the eggs the hens did lay.

The cold waves out of Canada have dipped lower into the South this year before turning eastward. Freezing weather has cut output of some winter vegetables and threatens to slice some southern fruit crops. You'll be paying tribute to the old fashioned winter in higher prices for some foods when you go to the grocery store.

The memory of the hurricanes of last summer and fall is revived today as insurance companies report on last year's earnings. For some of them, storm losses cut noticeably into profits.

Some big English companies that had picked up part of the risk, were especially hard hit. And their losses, paid in dollars, was one reason the pound sterling had a little sinking spell there a month or so ago.

In business and industry the weatherman plays both sides of the street.

RED CHINA STARVATION POLICY SUCCEEDS IN FORCING YOUTHS INTO JOINING ARMY

By F. K. WU
Central Press Correspondent

Red soldiers—hordes of hungry young men enlist in the Communist China army so that they may obtain better food.

HONG KONG — The starvation policy of the Chinese Communist regime in Peiping has worked out satisfactorily as planned. At least there is a rush to join the armed forces where two regular meals a day are certain.

According to arrivals from Pao An county bordering on this British colony of Hong Kong, 10,000 young men were to be drafted under the new conscription law for 1954-55 out of a population of 250,000 people, but since so many people are eager to join the army the draft boards have rejected many as unfit on the slightest pretext and would consider only 5,000 or 6,000 at most.

Although the number of persons conscripted is officially known to be 450,000 there is every indication that this figure is "quickly over subscribed" in view of the widespread hunger striking the entire country, particularly in the once prosperous Yangtse river belt following the disasterous summer floods. Food for the armed services is better than that obtainable by civilians, meat and fish being assured two or three times a week.

* * *

IN CONTRAST there are reports of extensive hunger and starvation in eight thickly populated and prosperous provinces in central and east China following the catastrophic deluge of last June, July and August.

While the Peiping regime has kept out any facts about the casualties and damage from the devastating inundation, an estimate by nationalist sources in Formosa said that 70 million are affected by this disaster.

Hungry and haggard refugees from Hupeh province in central China were reported to have fled to warmer regions in Canton and points farther south where the weather is less cold in the present winter and food is slightly more plentiful.

The terrible plight may be understood from a Communist official report saying that milk powder had to be sent from as far as Manchuria to flood victims in central China.

* * *

WHILE EFFECTS of the extensive flood are not yet fully known to the outside world, observers here believe that the Peiping regime is so undermined by the disaster that its time table of aggression in Southeast Asia is upset at least for early 1955. It is reported the five-year industrial plan was slowed down terribly by the dislocation, and this is confirmed by the silence of the Communist press and radio about the progress under the plan.

* * *

CHINESE newspapers published here reported that most people in eastern districts or Kwangtung province in south China are driven to eat turo, beans and sweet potatoes instead of rice, the staple food, and that some poor people are driven to eating leaves.

This is due to the bad harvest last autumn and the over burdening taxation. As Kwangtung was not affected by any flood, the conditions among the provinces traversed by the mighty Yangtse and its tributaries must be very much worse.

There is no starvation in Shanghai, once known as the Paris of the Orient, but the people have to eat coarse rice. The Freedom Front Weekly, an independent Chinese publication here, says that the unhulled rice caused constipation, other diseases and even tumors, as well as being highly unpalatable.

* * *

SHANGHAI doctors are helpless to cope with the situation because of the shortage of medical supplies, according to this influential weekly. Formerly small packages of pharmaceuticals were permitted by the Shanghai customs to be imported from Hong Kong, but the Communists have now put an end to such practice apparently without any reason, although critics of the Communist regime said this was one way for the Communists to pare down the population.

The people in Shanghai are angered by the fact that while vegetables are not rationed they cannot buy onions, tomatoes, potatoes and beets, which are reserved for making borsch and other Russian dishes for the many Soviet advisers and experts, according to the same publication. Pork could be obtained only after waiting five hours in a long queue.

Nevertheless, hundreds of pigs, cows, hens, chickens are shipped to Hong Kong every day in exchange for the much sought after Hong Kong dollars which could be converted into American dollars or any other foreign exchange.

* * *

CANNED PORK, beef, chicken, fish and ham, as well as vegetables and fruits are also exported here in large quantities for the same reason and for the propaganda purpose to show that Communist China is a nation with surplus foodstuffs for export.

An anti-Communist folk song is current in Communist China saying that one could breed pigs without having any pork to eat and that a planter may grow sugar cane without enjoying any sweetmeat. This is due to the fact that all the livestock and essential food are requisitioned from the owners for shipment to this British colony and other places in the free world.

The concensus of reports reaching here concludes that the people behind the Bamboo Curtain are quite convinced that Communism means tyranny, exploitation and hunger and not socialism in any sense.

5 States Pledge Safety Campaign

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Five midwestern states were pledged today to join a national "slow down and live" project credited with cutting summer traffic accidents 12 per cent last year.

Delegates from Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Missouri agreed at a regional conference yesterday to campaign against the "hurry bug" with special emphasis on the period from Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Young Women Car Drivers Credited For Insurance Cut

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Automobile liability insurance rates are coming down today in 39 states—and it's young women drivers, not the men, who are primarily responsible.

Ohio is one of the states.

Firms that are members of the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters are reducing the rates, in certain classifications, from 9 to 32 per cent. The reduction is expected to apply to about 25 per cent of private passengers cars insured by the companies.

John M. Nuchols, executive secretary of the Insurance Agents Assn. here, said recognition of their record plus a 10 per cent rate credit given to graduates of high school or college driver training courses are primarily responsible for the change.

"The classification plan has been revised to recognize that the family car is a less hazardous risk when the youthful drivers are young women rather than young men of the family," Nuckols said.

But don't feel too unhappy, fellows.

Nuckols went on to explain that it mainly "is a matter of reduced exposure.

"Young women usually have the use of the cars less frequently than the young men, particularly during the very hazardous evening hours, and, generally speaking, the young women are more frequently accompanied by responsible older people."

1. Nonbusiness family cars with women operators under 25 but no men drivers under 25—reduced 23 per cent. The reduction is 9 per cent if the cars are used for business purposes.

2. Nonbusiness cars of married couples with children where the husband is over 25 and the wife under 25—reduced 23 per cent and 9 per cent if used for business purposes.

3. Nonbusiness cars of married couples without children where the husband is over 25 but the wife under 25—reduced 32 per cent and 20 per cent if used in business.

4. Cars of married couples without children where the husband is under 25—reduced 12 per cent.

SHADES OF 1929

CONGRESS IS showing signs of concern over increasing activity in the nation's stock markets. Measures are being contemplated to protect the "innocent public" against "unscrupulous stock operators." How innocent the public is when it comes to stock speculation is largely a matter of opinion, however. The average American is a gambler by instinct. And the stock market offers opportunities for indulging the gambling spirit.

It has never been an American habit to permit money to lie idle. What is happening in the stock market right now is due to a great extent to the fact that money which otherwise might be idle is seeking investment. For example, pension funds of the various unions now total $17 billion and are increasing at the rate of more than $2 billion a year.

The President's council of economic advisers has considered the possible influence these huge sums might have on financial markets, perhaps to the point of taking control of some industries.

Of course, what Congress is thinking about is what happened in 1929 and the early 1930s. With world conditions precarious, this is no time for the U. S. to take off on another boom-and-bust expedition. But this will not happen.

The American investor is wiser in such matters than he was in the past. And he would resent being called innocent. He is a speculator, but not an innocent one.

NOT INFALLIBLE

THE KREMLIN'S unprecedented changing of the guard suggests an instability in Russia's ruling circle that could well be a hopeful augury for the cause of peace. The totalitarian USSR, annealed to the Stalin mold, has historically been activated by absolute control and rule by terror.

Malenkov's descent from power flouts tradition. Not only has he left office through the most untotalitarian device of resignation, but for the moment, at least, he seems to have gotten away with his whole skin—though, no doubt, purge-trial plans will be announced later.

An agonizing question confronting the Soviet powers that be is how they can hope to ride herd on the satellites and to keep the rest of the world half scared to death when top control is entangled in a revolving door. The Soviet leaders cannot hope to have the answer because they have never had to face the same problem before.

They probably count on keeping the satellites and home folks in line by the threat of force if not its actual use. But they have no way of stemming the lessening of awe that this admission of fallibility surely will engender in the world at large.

Since the ruling triumvirate took over in early 1953 two men have now gone to the showers—Beria had to be carried—and the odd man left, Foreign Minister Molotov, has been upstaged by Marshal Bulganin. The communists would not want to show this kind of instability to the world unless forced to it.

On December 4, 1954, it was reported by the (Exchange) Telegraph from Delhi that India had a plan to neutralize Formosa. The report said that Prime Minister Nehru of India was seeking diplomatic reactions to a proposal that Chiang Kai-shek be removed and that Formosa be taken by an international commission of neutral powers.

'The proposal carries an offer by India to serve on the commission and provide custodian troops for an agreed period, possibly of from 3 to 5 years. The Indian plan calls for a plebiscite at the end of that period to decide whether Formosa should be handed over to Communist China or remain under the administration of a neutral commission.

"The (Exchange) Telegraph correspondent says India has reason to believe that Communist China favorably disposed to the plan provided that Britain and America are not represented on the proposed commission."

It is not known what has become of this proposal. In British circles it is reported that Nehru has had a change of heart and is no longer as pro-Communist as he formerly was. At any rate, the suggestion that a neutral commission consisting of India, Poland and Sweden take over Formosa has been bandied about.

It is interesting that, as this suggestion goes, the Soviet Universal State has one representative on it, Poland, but the United ed States has none. Yet the United States is the principal factor in the Formosan situation, more important than Chiang Kai-shek and his government who now are creatures of and dependent upon the United States.

If Indian troops occupy Formosa what is to become of Chiang Kai-shek's army there? Is there to be a war between Indian troops and Nationalist troops? How is Chaing Kai-shek to be removed? Will they carry him out of his office the way Sewell Avery was? Will they put him in a bamboo cage and ship him to Chou En-lai and Mao Tze-tung?

What will happen in Formosa while the Indians are removing Chaing Kai-shek? My guess is that if anybody tried it, there would be such a massacre as has never before been witnessed. Again, the racial question will arise. Whereas to many Americans and Europeans all the peoples of Asia are alike, to a Chinese, a Hindo is a very different kind of person and one not favorably thought of. And it is also true vice versa.

There is another point here: If the Nehru idea were to be considered seriously, what would become of the treaty just ratified by the Senate between the United States and Formosa? Does not that Treaty obligate the United States to defend Chaing Kai-shek and his gevernment? Would the United States have to go to war with India over Nehru's proposal?

In a word, here is another confusing factor in an already chaotic situation that could lead to war. Nehru may have changed his mind about all this, as the British say he has, but the fact that he could entertain this notion felt free to devise means to eliminate the United States from the Western Pacific. For that is what the Nehru proposal in essence meant.

Cod Liver Oil Helps Baby's Bones Grow Well

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

YOUR baby needs vitamins A and D, and one of the best ways to see that he gets them is to give him daily doses of cod liver oil.

Vitamins A and D help your youngster grow, and give him strength and energy. If he lacks vitamin D he probably won't have sound, straight bones, and he might be irritable and even develop rickets.

"Bottled Sunshine"

Vitamin D has frequently been called "bottled sunshine," since it has practically the same effect on your baby as the ultra-violet rays of the sun. Because of this, many mothers mistakenly believe their tots don't need cod liver oil during the summer months. Your baby, however, probably doesn't get enough sun, even in the summer, to take the place of cod liver oil completely. Summertime doses, however, usually can be reduced.

As a rule, you should begin giving your baby cod liver oil when he is from two to four weeks old. At first, give him half a teaspoonful once a day, preferably before his 10 a.m. feeding, until he becomes used to it. This usually takes a couple of days.

Increase the amount gradually, until within a week he is getting one spoonful each day. At the age of five weeks, give him a second spoonful daily, one before the 2 p.m. feeding and another before the 6 p.m. meal. It's probably best to keep giving him two spoonfuls daily until he's two years old. During the summer months, when he can get a daily sun bath, he'll probably need only one spoonful.

We usually advise giving the cod liver oil before, rather than after his meals, because it sometimes makes children vomit. If he vomits after his feeding, he loses his food as well as the cod liver oil. If the baby repeatedly vomits or spits out his cod liver oil, or if he continues to refuse to take it, don't force it on him. This will only make him dislike it. Instead, give him some other preparation rich in vitamin D, such as cod liver oil concentrates or other fish oils. Ask your doctor which is best for him.

Orange Juice May Help

Sometimes you can get a baby to take cod liver oil if you put it in a spoon containing orange juice. I don't advise you to mix it with his milk mixture. The oil will stick to the inside of the bottle and the nipple, which might cause him to dislike his milk mixture, and you don't want that to happen.

The baby may make a face and cry the first few tmes he is given cod liver oil. But if you give it to him every day, and in the right manner, he will probably soon learn to like it.

One more thing: don't give the baby the idea you don't like it by making a face. He might sense your attitude and learn to dislike it, too.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

R. T.: My throat has been sore constantly. What causes this?

Answer: It may be due to infection, excessive or faulty use of the voice, the frequent inhalation of smoke or abuse of alcoholic beverages.

Doctor at the CROSSROADS

By ELIZABETH SEIFERT

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Fred Beier had come from St. Louis to the little town of Jennings, Missouri, where he served as a general practitioner. He was happy in his work here, happy with Katie, his wife. But, now, at the end of three years, Katie sensed danger to their marriage. Sensed it in the person of Linda Kyle, a gracious young matron whose genuine kindness to people in distress, had won her a place in the doctor's affections. The people of Jennings realized that young Beier was a good doctor, and he was grateful to them for their support. They'd given him a hospital of sorts, an old house, remodeled and converted into a clinic. One evening Dr. Beier was suddenly summoned to the home of Linda Kyle. Here he found her elderly husband stricken, dying, perhaps. He decided to call his old friend, Murphy Hudson, in consultation. So he 'phoned the great Doctor Hudson in St. Louis, arranging for him to come at once to Jennings.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

FRED turned to look critically at Murphy.

"What's wrong?" asked Dr. Hudson.

"Now look, Fritz!"

"But you do smell of the city, and of the big specialist which you are."

Murphy settled back in the seat. "I'm sorry I can't say the same of you," he drawled.

Fred might have added that Murphy also reeked of personal charm. He did, and consciously. His homely face, his darkly intent eyes, his manner of speech—always a little brusquely frank—the shock of his apparent frankness serving to conceal the purpose which so often lay behind his words or actions.

Now this slender, dark man took a tortoise-shell case from his coat pocket, snapped it open and held it toward Fred. The cigarets were long, and equipped with filters. Fred shook his head.

"Don't tell me you still smoke jimson-weed?"

"I haven't changed one bit," Fred agreed.

'I hope—but doubt—that that includes your research project."

Fred laughed. "It does."

"Oh, yes. I am, as well, an internist, a surgeon, and an obstetrician. A pediatrician — psychiatrist—"

"Dentist and oculist?"

"And laboratory technician."

"In other words, a g.p."

"That's it."

"The vanishing American."

"If so, you slickers are to blame."

"Now, Fritz, you must look at the matter as it is—"

"You're the one who needs to look, Murph. I'm in it, up to here!" His free hand touched his forehead. "I know better than you what a country g. p. is and does. I am one. Like my brothers, I work an eight-day week, and I wouldn't know what to do with a vacation if I ever had one. For that matter, I don't always know what to do with a spare hour or so when one comes up. I usually spend it worrying over some special patient, or trying to decide whether to read the oldest or the newest of my stack of accumulated medical journals."

"But not how to spend your money."

"No, I don't worry about that. I agree that working in a dozen fields doesn't compensate me as your specializing in one does you, but I have some intangibles which you may not be able to claim."

"Such as?"

"The affection of my patients. The high place I hold in this community. And the fact that I am my own boss."

"Hmmnn," said Murphy. "Is that good?"

"It's good! Besides, unlike a lot of rural g. p.'s, I have my own hospital. Right there before you."

"Come inside," said Fred, "let me show it to you."

"My bags . . . ?"

"Leave 'em in the car. And don't mention locking it. There isn't a man in the Valley would steal anything out of my car."

Murphy raised his eyebrows, then shrugged assent. "Well, you being you, I'll believe you."

Fred displayed his hospital with little explanation and no apology. It was clean and efficient. Murph was fully competent to judge its merits, its equipment. Wards, operating room, small lab, the kitchen—

"And you're proud of this?" was his concluding comment.

"I'm proud of it," Fred affirmed. "I'll say again that here I am my own boss. In my turn, may I ask you a question?"

"Sure. Why not?"

"It isn't a polite one."

"Mine was?"

Fred could have told their wondering friends that he and Murphy thoroughly understood one another. "I was going to ask you," said Fred now, "what you could show me along the line of your hospital, and your independence?"

Murphy shrugged. "Well, Fritz," he said with an attempt at modesty, "you know . . ."

"I do know!" said Fred swiftly. "You are on the staff of three hospitals in St. Louis. Three big hospitals. I also know why you are on those staffs."

Murphy's black eyes snapped.

"Because," Fred continued smoothly, "you are still in Funderburk's office. Wait a minute—I am well aware that Funderburk tops his field. I worked under him, too, remember. I know what an exceedingly big wheel he is in the hospitals and that they include his assistant on their staffs. I know how you trot along always in his shadow, how you carry out his decisions—"

"I'm a fairly busy man on my own, Fritz," said Murphy huffily.

"Of course you're busy. You even make your own decisions—always being sure, of course, that Funderburk would approve."

"I've every right to resent that, Fred!"

Fred smiled and shook his head. "Oh, not with me, Murph! Because I know what I'm talking about."

Murphy shrugged. "If you have that opinion of me, why did you call me clear out here into the hills for a consultation? Why didn't you get Funderburk?"

"Because he wouldn't have come. And you've learned a lot from him; you've nicely handled patients for me before. You've been working exclusively with the brain. And I'm not saying that you couldn't be a doctor in your own right; I'm just reminding you that I know the sort of doctor you are being, because I myself tried your way."

It was Fred's turn to shrug. "Not from my point of view. I'm busy, I like my work—and that's about all I want of life."

"The most awful thing about that statement," said Murphy with concern, "is that you mean it!"

"I do. Now—about this case—"

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON—A pork barrel brawl involving President Eisenhower, the United States Steel Corp. and Pennsylvania Republicans has boiled up afresh behind the scenes on Capitol Hill. It is one of the strangest politico-economic quarrels in several years, with Ike bucking normally GOP-ish "big interests."

It concerns a new chapter in the story of the proposed deepening of the Delaware River between Philadelphia and Trenton. Over the Pennsylvanians' protests, the President and Budget Bureau insist that "local interests" pay $18 million of the total $91 million cost. Otherwise, they will oppose the project.

* * *

CONTRIBUTIONS—Ike tried to explain and justify his stand at a recent press conference, but he was obviously unfamiliar with all the facts. He declared that whenever internal improvements benefited a certain area, the regional interests, public and private, should pay a percentage of the costs.

His insistence on local contributions has been interpreted as laying down an entirely new theory for financing major federal projects. In the past, the government has paid for them on the theory that what helped one large area strengthened the national economy, and, therefore, was a legitimate Federal charge.

* * *

PRONOUNCEMENT — It is true that the Army Engineers, who run a determined lobby at Washington, have frequently persuaded local interests to kick in for dredging rivers and harbors, or beautifying the waterfront. But Ike's pronouncement made it appear that he was enunciating a new and general policy on a national level. In fact, he did declare that his formula for the Delaware improvement should be applied to all federal undertakings.

* * *

FACTS—The President did not know or divulge all the facts in the controversy, which are these:

When the Delaware deepening was first proposed, the program contemplated only a 35-foot channel. But when U. S. Steel built the new Fairless plant at Morrisville, Pa., it found that its ore-carrying vessels required a 40-foot depth. The additional cost for U. S. Steel's extra five feet depth amounted to $18 million.

In demanding that "local interests" contribute this amount, neither Eisenhower nor the Budget Bureau have identified the corporation's special interest fully and frankly.

* * *

DEMANDS—The House Public Works Committee agreed with Eisenhower. Rep. John J. Dempsey New Mexico Democrat, and Rep. George A. Dondero, Republican of Michigan, former committee chairman, led the fight for a U. S. Steel contribution of $18 million. The measure passed the House with that provision.

But the chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee is Sen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania. When House and Senate conference committees met to iron out the anti-steel House measure and the pro-steel Senate enactment, Martin demanded that the government finance the extra depth. Otherwise, he said, there would be no omnibus, pork barrel, rivers and harbors legislation at this session.

* * *

MANEUVER — Since 42 other states had regional and beneficial projects in the popular omnibus measure, Martin's holdup maneuver worked. House and Senate passed it as he wanted it, and forwarded it to the White House for approval.

But the public works bill amounts to only an authorization for the Delaware deepening. It carries no money. Opponents are now buttonholing members of the House Appropriations Committee, especially Chairman Clarence Cannon, and begging them to knock out any funds for U. S. Steel's extra five feet.

John Straley tells about the newlyweds who were ordering their first winter's supply of coal. "Egg or chestnut?" asked the dealer. 'Egg, I guess," said the bride dubiously. "I don't expect I'll cook as many chestnuts as I will eggs.'

Same gal had to wear glasses within a month of her marriage. Bridegroom figured she needed them when she saw a picture in the paper and said, "Why do they have the big number 18 on the front page?

Seems it was a photograph of Frank Sinatra talking to Jane Russell.

A thoughtful pediatrician reminded a comparatively new father, "Never spank your child on an empty stomach. Be sure to eat something first." Then he noticed that the bbay's hair had turned white. "This kid is worrying about something?" he asked. "It's not the kid at all," the father answered him. "It's my nearsighted wife. She keeps powdering the wrong end."

Traffic "solutions" — street widening, one-way streets, expressways, tunnels—while making escape from the city easier, have uually resulted in heavier congestion in the city's core by providing greater access to the already overburdened central area.

Cod Liver Oil Helps Baby's Bones Grow Well

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

YOUR baby needs vitamins A and D, and one of the best ways to see that he gets them is to give him daily doses of cod liver oil.

Vitamins A and D help your youngster grow, and give him strength and energy. If he lacks vitamin D he probably won't have sound, straight bones, and he might be irritable and even develop rickets.

"Bottled Sunshine"

Vitamin D has frequently been called "bottled sunshine," since it has practically the same effect on your baby as the ultra-violet rays of the sun. Because of this, many mothers mistakenly believe their tots don't need cod liver oil during the summer months. Your baby, however, probably doesn't get enough sun, even in the summer, to take the place of cod liver oil completely. Summertime doses, however, usually can be reduced.

As a rule, you should begin giving your baby cod liver oil when he is from two to four weeks old. At first, give him half a teaspoonful once a day, preferably before his 10 a.m. feeding, until he becomes used to it. This usually takes a couple of days.

Increase the amount gradually, until within a week he is getting one spoonful each day. At the age of five weeks, give him a second spoonful daily, one before the 2 p.m. feeding and another before the 6 p.m. meal. It's probably best to keep giving him two spoonfuls daily until he's two years old. During the summer months, when he can get a daily sun bath, he'll probably need only one spoonful.

We usually advise giving the cod liver oil before, rather than after his meals, because it sometimes makes children vomit. If he vomits after his feeding, he loses his food as well as the cod liver oil. If the baby repeatedly vomits or spits out his cod liver oil, or if he continues to refuse to take it, don't force it on him. This will only make him dislike it. Instead, give him some other preparation rich in vitamin D, such as cod liver oil concentrates or other fish oils. Ask your doctor which is best for him.

Orange Juice May Help

Sometimes you can get a baby to take cod liver oil if you put it in a spoon containing orange juice. I don't advise you to mix it with his milk mixture. The oil will stick to the inside of the bottle and the nipple, which might cause him to dislike his milk mixture, and you don't want that to happen.

The baby may make a face and cry the first few tmes he is given cod liver oil. But if you give it to him every day, and in the right manner, he will probably soon learn to like it.

One more thing: don't give the baby the idea you don't like it by making a face. He might sense your attitude and learn to dislike it, too.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

R. T.: My throat has been sore constantly. What causes this?

Answer: It may be due to infection, excessive or faulty use of the voice, the frequent inhalation of smoke or abuse of alcoholic beverages.

Doctor at the CROSSROADS

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Fred Beier had come from St. Louis to the little town of Jennings, Missouri, where he served as a general practitioner. He was happy in his work here, happy with Katie, his wife. But, now, at the end of three years, Katie sensed danger to their marriage. Sensed it in the person of Linda Kyle, a gracious young matron whose genuine kindness to people in distress, had won her a place in the doctor's affections. The people of Jennings realized that young Beier was a good doctor, and he was grateful to them for their support. They'd given him a hospital of sorts, an old house, remodeled and converted into a clinic. One evening Dr. Beier was suddenly summoned to the home of Linda Kyle. Here he found her elderly husband stricken, dying, perhaps. He decided to call his old friend, Murphy Hudson, in consultation. So he 'phoned the great Doctor Hudson in St. Louis, arranging for him to come at once to Jennings.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

FRED turned to look critically at Murphy.

"What's wrong?" asked Dr. Hudson.

"Now look, Fritz!"

"But you do smell of the city, and of the big specialist which you are."

Murphy settled back in the seat. "I'm sorry I can't say the same of you," he drawled.

Fred might have added that Murphy also reeked of personal charm. He did, and consciously. His homely face, his darkly intent eyes, his manner of speech—always a little brusquely frank—the shock of his apparent frankness serving to conceal the purpose which so often lay behind his words or actions.

Now this slender, dark man took a tortoise-shell case from his coat pocket, snapped it open and held it toward Fred. The cigarets were long, and equipped with filters. Fred shook his head.

"Don't tell me you still smoke jimson-weed?"

"I haven't changed one bit," Fred agreed.

'I hope—but doubt—that that includes your research project."

Fred laughed. "It does."

"Oh, yes. I am, as well, an internist, a surgeon, and an obstetrician. A pediatrician — psychiatrist—"

"Dentist and oculist?"

"And laboratory technician."

"In other words, a g.p."

"That's it."

"The vanishing American."

"If so, you slickers are to blame."

"Now, Fritz, you must look at the matter as it is—"

"You're the one who needs to look, Murph. I'm in it, up to here!" His free hand touched his forehead. "I know better than you what a country g. p. is and does. I am one. Like my brothers, I work an eight-day week, and I wouldn't know what to do with a vacation if I ever had one. For that matter, I don't always know what to do with a spare hour or so when one comes up. I usually spend it worrying over some special patient, or trying to decide whether to read the oldest or the newest of my stack of accumulated medical journals."

"But not how to spend your money."

"No, I don't worry about that. I agree that working in a dozen fields doesn't compensate me as your specializing in one does you, but I have some intangibles which you may not be able to claim."

"Such as?"

"The affection of my patients. The high place I hold in this community. And the fact that I am my own boss."

"Hmmnn," said Murphy. "Is that good?"

"It's good! Besides, unlike a lot of rural g. p.'s, I have my own hospital. Right there before you."

"Come inside," said Fred, "let me show it to you."

"My bags . . . ?"

"Leave 'em in the car. And don't mention locking it. There isn't a man in the Valley would steal anything out of my car."

Murphy raised his eyebrows, then shrugged assent. "Well, you being you, I'll believe you."

Fred displayed his hospital with little explanation and no apology. It was clean and efficient. Murph was fully competent to judge its merits, its equipment. Wards, operating room, small lab, the kitchen—

"And you're proud of this?" was his concluding comment.

"I'm proud of it," Fred affirmed. "I'll say again that here I am my own boss. In my turn, may I ask you a question?"

"Sure. Why not?"

"It isn't a polite one."

"Mine was?"

Fred could have told their wondering friends that he and Murphy thoroughly understood one another. "I was going to ask you," said Fred now, "what you could show me along the line of your hospital, and your independence?"

Murphy shrugged. "Well, Fritz," he said with an attempt at modesty, "you know . . ."

"I do know!" said Fred swiftly. "You are on the staff of three hospitals in St. Louis. Three big hospitals. I also know why you are on those staffs."

Murphy's black eyes snapped.

"Because," Fred continued smoothly, "you are still in Funderburk's office. Wait a minute—I am well aware that Funderburk tops his field. I worked under him, too, remember. I know what an exceedingly big wheel he is in the hospitals and that they include his assistant on their staffs. I know how you trot along always in his shadow, how you carry out his decisions—"

"I'm a fairly busy man on my own, Fritz," said Murphy huffily.

"Of course you're busy. You even make your own decisions—always being sure, of course, that Funderburk would approve."

"I've every right to resent that, Fred!"

Fred smiled and shook his head. "Oh, not with me, Murph! Because I know what I'm talking about."

Murphy shrugged. "If you have that opinion of me, why did you call me clear out here into the hills for a consultation? Why didn't you get Funderburk?"

"Because he wouldn't have come. And you've learned a lot from him; you've nicely handled patients for me before. You've been working exclusively with the brain. And I'm not saying that you couldn't be a doctor in your own right; I'm just reminding you that I know the sort of doctor you are being, because I myself tried your way."

It was Fred's turn to shrug. "Not from my point of view. I'm busy, I like my work—and that's about all I want of life."

"The most awful thing about that statement," said Murphy with concern, "is that you mean it!"

"I do. Now—about this case—"

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON—A pork barrel brawl involving President Eisenhower, the United States Steel Corp. and Pennsylvania Republicans has boiled up afresh behind the scenes on Capitol Hill. It is one of the strangest politico-economic quarrels in several years, with Ike bucking normally GOP-ish "big interests."

It concerns a new chapter in the story of the proposed deepening of the Delaware River between Philadelphia and Trenton. Over the Pennsylvanians' protests, the President and Budget Bureau insist that "local interests" pay $18 million of the total $91 million cost. Otherwise, they will oppose the project.

* * *

CONTRIBUTIONS—Ike tried to explain and justify his stand at a recent press conference, but he was obviously unfamiliar with all the facts. He declared that whenever internal improvements benefited a certain area, the regional interests, public and private, should pay a percentage of the costs.

His insistence on local contributions has been interpreted as laying down an entirely new theory for financing major federal projects. In the past, the government has paid for them on the theory that what helped one large area strengthened the national economy, and, therefore, was a legitimate Federal charge.

* * *

PRONOUNCEMENT — It is true that the Army Engineers, who run a determined lobby at Washington, have frequently persuaded local interests to kick in for dredging rivers and harbors, or beautifying the waterfront. But Ike's pronouncement made it appear that he was enunciating a new and general policy on a national level. In fact, he did declare that his formula for the Delaware improvement should be applied to all federal undertakings.

* * *

FACTS—The President did not know or divulge all the facts in the controversy, which are these:

When the Delaware deepening was first proposed, the program contemplated only a 35-foot channel. But when U. S. Steel built the new Fairless plant at Morrisville, Pa., it found that its ore-carrying vessels required a 40-foot depth. The additional cost for U. S. Steel's extra five feet depth amounted to $18 million.

In demanding that "local interests" contribute this amount, neither Eisenhower nor the Budget Bureau have identified the corporation's special interest fully and frankly.

* * *

DEMANDS—The House Public Works Committee agreed with Eisenhower. Rep. John J. Dempsey New Mexico Democrat, and Rep. George A. Dondero, Republican of Michigan, former committee chairman, led the fight for a U. S. Steel contribution of $18 million. The measure passed the House with that provision.

But the chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee is Sen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania. When House and Senate conference committees met to iron out the anti-steel House measure and the pro-steel Senate enactment, Martin demanded that the government finance the extra depth. Otherwise, he said, there would be no omnibus, pork barrel, rivers and harbors legislation at this session.

* * *

MANEUVER — Since 42 other states had regional and beneficial projects in the popular omnibus measure, Martin's holdup maneuver worked. House and Senate passed it as he wanted it, and forwarded it to the White House for approval.

But the public works bill amounts to only an authorization for the Delaware deepening. It carries no money. Opponents are now buttonholing members of the House Appropriations Committee, especially Chairman Clarence Cannon, and begging them to knock out any funds for U. S. Steel's extra five feet.

Major James Dunton Prepares Address

Miss Florence N. Dunton of S. Court St. presented a paper, "Our National Defense System", when the Major John Boggs Chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, met in the home of Miss Mary Heffner of E. Mound St.

The paper was written especially for Miss Dunton by her brother, Major James G. Dunton, assistant secretary of Legislation and Public Affairs with offices in the Pentagon.

A summary of Major Dunton's paper would include the following statements:

Today the immediate responsibility for the military security of the United States is primarily in the hands of the Secretary of Defense. He acts under the direction of the President who is Commander-in-Chief of our Armed Forces. Other advisors to the President on such matters are: The National Security Council members, assisted by the Central Intelligence Agency and the Office of Defense Mobilization.

The National Security Council brings together and evaluates foreign, domestic and military policies relating to national security. Under the direction of the council, the Central Intelligence Agency coordinates intelligence activities of federal agencies concerned with national security.

The Office of Defense Mobilization advises and assists the President in the coordination of military, industrial and civilian mobilization. It has an extraordinary responsibility. It must develop policies and programs for balancing the total resources of our nation against the total military and civilian requirements.

Although working closely with the Department of Defense, these three agencies — National Security Council, Central Intelligence Agency and the Office of Defense Mobilization—are not in the Department.

In the early days of our republic, a War Department, headed by a Secretary of War, was organized to conduct the nation's military affairs. Later a Navy Department, also headed by a secretary was formed.

During World War II the Joint Chiefs of Staff was added to coordinate the land, naval and air operations on a world-wide basis.

After extensive study by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and by Congressional and other committees, the National Security Act of 1947, known as the Unification Act, was passed by Congress. In August 1949, Congress passed amendments converting the National Military Establishment into an executive department, the Department of Defense.

The chain of command within the Department of Defense consists of the Secretary of Defense, Deputy Secretary and three military departments—Army, Navy and Air Force. The Secretary and Deputy Secretary are assisted in the performance of their functions by nine assistant secretaries, a general counsel and an assistant to the Secretary of Defense.

Major Dunton sent two pamphlets to be distributed to the members, 'Our Department of Defense" and 'The Pentagon", a description of the world's largest office building.

The meeting was opened in ritualistic form by the president, Mrs. Richard Hedges, assisted by the chaplain, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck. Pledge of allegiance to the Flag was led by Mrs. Charles H. May.

A nominating committee to prepare a slate of officers for 1955-1957 was elected by the chapter-at-large. Mrs. Bryce Briggs, Mrs. Harry Kearns and Mrs. George Roth are to present the slate of officers to be elected in April.

Delegates named to a state council of the Ohio Society, United States Daughters of 1812, to be held May 2-3-4 in Akron in the Mayflower Hotel, with the Portage Trail Chapter as hostess, are: Mrs. Loren Hynes, Miss Gertrude Allen, Miss Dunton and Miss Heffner.

Alternates are: Mrs. Fred Sexauer, Mrs. Paul Gearhart, Mrs. May, Mrs. Sterley Croman, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Hornbeck, Mrs. Phillip Dunlap and Mrs. Robert Heath.

At the request of Mrs. Hedges, the retiring president, the Chapter voted to contribute the money customarily invested in a Past President's pin to a medical scholarship at Caney Creek.

Solaqua Garden Club Topic Is Dried Flowers

The Solaqua Garden Club of Ashville and vicinity enjoyed a program on dried arrangements during a meeting in the home of Mrs. Frank Grice of W. Main St., Ashville.

Kodachrome slides of dried arrangements from Ohio State University were shown by Mrs. James Hott. Commentary on the slides by Mrs. Edward Ray of Lancaster was read by Mrs. Homer Peters. Several of Mrs. Hott's arrangements were included in the list of fifty slides shown.

The arrangements proved to the members that with a little forethought and preparation, one need never want for material for floral arrangements in any season of the year.

Mrs. Grice had decorated her home for the occasion with house plants and dried arrangements made by Mrs. Hott.

In the absence of both the president and vice president, Mrs. Hott, a former president of the club, conducted the meeting. Scripture reading by Mrs. Hott was followed by repetition of the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Sixteen members answered roll call by naming a new plant they intend to raise this season. Mrs. Russell Costlow was welcomed into the club as a new member.

The ways and means committee presented initial plans for the club to attend a radio program in Columbus. Final details are to be completed by the committee.

During a social hour, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Jennie Russell and Mrs. Hott. A March session is to be held in the home of Mrs. Harry Trump, with Mrs. John Eitel as assisting hostess.

Nebraska Grange Has Legislative Program Session

Worthy Master Ray Marburger presided at a regular meeting of Nebraska Grange. Contributions were made to both the State and National Grange Youth Fund.

Mrs. Olive Quillen announced a Home Demonstration meeting to be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Ben Nothstine. The subject for discussion will be "Better Mends".

Members were asked to send cards to John Lanman, who is reported to be a patient in Mercy Hospital, Columbus. A note of thanks was read from Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Woolever, who received a baby gift from the Grange members.

Hugh Coffman, lecturer, announced plans for a Grange essay contest on the subject of "Gaining Ground with Fertility." Members interested were asked to obtain further information from Mr. Coffman.

The lecturer presented A. J. Dunkel, legislative agent, who led a discussion on various bills which are to come before the legislature soon. Members were urged to write to their Senators and Representatives and express their views.

A March 1 meeting of the Grange has been cancelled due to traveling degree work at Saltcreek Grange on that date. Mt. Pleasant Grange will confer the third degree and Star Grange the fourth. All Grange members in the county are invited to attend the meeting, which begins at 8 p. m.

A March 15 meeting will be preceded with a carry-in dinner at 6:30 p. m. in the Grange hall. New members and the Grange basketball team will be honored. Mr. and Mrs. David Dill will present program for the session.

Refreshments were served by a February committee, with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hoover as chairmen.

Junior Youth Class Convenes

Mrs. Hugh Poling was in charge of a meeting of the Junior Youth Fellowship class of the Laurelville church.

A total of 18 members answered roll call at the session, which was held in the church social rooms. Mrs. Eddie Boecher assisted Mrs. Poling in the activities.

Games and contests were enjoyed and Max Young and Jane Allen were declared contest winners. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Jimmy and Bobbie Dumm.

4-H Tractor Club Holds Discussion

The third meeting of the Pickaway County 4-H Tractor Maintenance Club was held in the Hill Implement Company.

Discussion at the meeting was on "What Makes an Engine Run" and "A Look at Your Operator's Manual."

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. The next session is to be held March 2 in the Bowers Implement Company.

Scioto Valley Grange Conducts Valentine Party

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Berger were chairmen for the event. They were assisted by Miss Sadie Palm, Miss Gladys Vause, Mrs. Agnes Riegel, Mrs. Ethel Valentine, Mrs. Russell Bowsher and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Vause.

The program opened with group singing of "School Days". Miss Vause read an article, "Valentines of Yesterday". Games and stunts were enjoyed by the Grange members, who were divided into four teams.

The program closed with a traditional Valentine box. After distribution of the Valentines to the assembled group, the Grange members voted to send their Valentines to the Pickaway County Home.

During a business session, which preceded the program, Fred Dountz of the Scioto Grange gave a report on a State Grange convention which was held in Columbus.

Worthy Master Harold Bumgarner announced plans for an annual Men's Night dinner, which is to be held March 8. Harry Speakman is chairman for the event. He will be assisted by E. E. Runkle and Howard Noecker.

R. S. Swenson, Pickaway County Extension Agent, is to be guest speaker at a meeting scheduled for Tuesday evening. His address is to be on the expanding extension program.

Youth Fellowship Has Initial Meet In Church Center

Twenty young people attended the first organized meeting of the Youth Fellowship of First Evangelical United Brethren church.

The session, which was held in the Christian service center, was opened by Carole Gibbs. Devotions included Scripture reading, group singing and prayer.

Elliot Hawkes presided at a short business session. Edwin Richardson, youth director, led program for the evening, using as his theme "Precious Treasure."

Major James Dunton Prepares Address

Miss Florence N. Dunton of S. Court St. presented a paper, "Our National Defense System", when the Major John Boggs Chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, met in the home of Miss Mary Heffner of E. Mound St.

The paper was written especially for Miss Dunton by her brother, Major James G. Dunton, assistant secretary of Legislation and Public Affairs with offices in the Pentagon.

A summary of Major Dunton's paper would include the following statements:

Today the immediate responsibility for the military security of the United States is primarily in the hands of the Secretary of Defense. He acts under the direction of the President who is Commander-in-Chief of our Armed Forces. Other advisors to the President on such matters are: The National Security Council members, assisted by the Central Intelligence Agency and the Office of Defense Mobilization.

The National Security Council brings together and evaluates foreign, domestic and military policies relating to national security. Under the direction of the council, the Central Intelligence Agency coordinates intelligence activities of federal agencies concerned with national security.

The Office of Defense Mobilization advises and assists the President in the coordination of military, industrial and civilian mobilization. It has an extraordinary responsibility. It must develop policies and programs for balancing the total resources of our nation against the total military and civilian requirements.

Although working closely with the Department of Defense, these three agencies — National Security Council, Central Intelligence Agency and the Office of Defense Mobilization—are not in the Department.

In the early days of our republic, a War Department, headed by a Secretary of War, was organized to conduct the nation's military affairs. Later a Navy Department, also headed by a secretary was formed.

During World War II the Joint Chiefs of Staff was added to coordinate the land, naval and air operations on a world-wide basis.

After extensive study by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and by Congressional and other committees, the National Security Act of 1947, known as the Unification Act, was passed by Congress. In August 1949, Congress passed amendments converting the National Military Establishment into an executive department, the Department of Defense.

The chain of command within the Department of Defense consists of the Secretary of Defense, Deputy Secretary and three military departments—Army, Navy and Air Force. The Secretary and Deputy Secretary are assisted in the performance of their functions by nine assistant secretaries, a general counsel and an assistant to the Secretary of Defense.

Major Dunton sent two pamphlets to be distributed to the members, 'Our Department of Defense" and 'The Pentagon", a description of the world's largest office building.

The meeting was opened in ritualistic form by the president, Mrs. Richard Hedges, assisted by the chaplain, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck. Pledge of allegiance to the Flag was led by Mrs. Charles H. May.

A nominating committee to prepare a slate of officers for 1955-1957 was elected by the chapter-at-large. Mrs. Bryce Briggs, Mrs. Harry Kearns and Mrs. George Roth are to present the slate of officers to be elected in April.

Delegates named to a state council of the Ohio Society, United States Daughters of 1812, to be held May 2-3-4 in Akron in the Mayflower Hotel, with the Portage Trail Chapter as hostess, are: Mrs. Loren Hynes, Miss Gertrude Allen, Miss Dunton and Miss Heffner.

Alternates are: Mrs. Fred Sexauer, Mrs. Paul Gearhart, Mrs. May, Mrs. Sterley Croman, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Hornbeck, Mrs. Phillip Dunlap and Mrs. Robert Heath.

At the request of Mrs. Hedges, the retiring president, the Chapter voted to contribute the money customarily invested in a Past President's pin to a medical scholarship at Caney Creek.

Solaqua Garden Club Topic Is Dried Flowers

The Solaqua Garden Club of Ashville and vicinity enjoyed a program on dried arrangements during a meeting in the home of Mrs. Frank Grice of W. Main St., Ashville.

Kodachrome slides of dried arrangements from Ohio State University were shown by Mrs. James Hott. Commentary on the slides by Mrs. Edward Ray of Lancaster was read by Mrs. Homer Peters. Several of Mrs. Hott's arrangements were included in the list of fifty slides shown.

The arrangements proved to the members that with a little forethought and preparation, one need never want for material for floral arrangements in any season of the year.

Mrs. Grice had decorated her home for the occasion with house plants and dried arrangements made by Mrs. Hott.

In the absence of both the president and vice president, Mrs. Hott, a former president of the club, conducted the meeting. Scripture reading by Mrs. Hott was followed by repetition of the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Sixteen members answered roll call by naming a new plant they intend to raise this season. Mrs. Russell Costlow was welcomed into the club as a new member.

The ways and means committee presented initial plans for the club to attend a radio program in Columbus. Final details are to be completed by the committee.

During a social hour, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Jennie Russell and Mrs. Hott. A March session is to be held in the home of Mrs. Harry Trump, with Mrs. John Eitel as assisting hostess.

Nebraska Grange Has Legislative Program Session

Worthy Master Ray Marburger presided at a regular meeting of Nebraska Grange. Contributions were made to both the State and National Grange Youth Fund.

Mrs. Olive Quillen announced a Home Demonstration meeting to be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Ben Nothstine. The subject for discussion will be "Better Mends".

Members were asked to send cards to John Lanman, who is reported to be a patient in Mercy Hospital, Columbus. A note of thanks was read from Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Woolever, who received a baby gift from the Grange members.

Hugh Coffman, lecturer, announced plans for a Grange essay contest on the subject of "Gaining Ground with Fertility." Members interested were asked to obtain further information from Mr. Coffman.

The lecturer presented A. J. Dunkel, legislative agent, who led a discussion on various bills which are to come before the legislature soon. Members were urged to write to their Senators and Representatives and express their views.

A March 1 meeting of the Grange has been cancelled due to traveling degree work at Saltcreek Grange on that date. Mt. Pleasant Grange will confer the third degree and Star Grange the fourth. All Grange members in the county are invited to attend the meeting, which begins at 8 p. m.

A March 15 meeting will be preceded with a carry-in dinner at 6:30 p. m. in the Grange hall. New members and the Grange basketball team will be honored. Mr. and Mrs. David Dill will present program for the session.

Refreshments were served by a February committee, with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hoover as chairmen.

Junior Youth Class Convenes

A total of 18 members answered roll call at the session, which was held in the church social rooms. Mrs. Eddie Boecher assisted Mrs. Poling in the activities.

Games and contests were enjoyed and Max Young and Jane Allen were declared contest winners. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Jimmy and Bobbie Dumm.

4-H Tractor Club Holds Discussion

The third meeting of the Pickaway County 4-H Tractor Maintenance Club was held in the Hill Implement Company.

Discussion at the meeting was on "What Makes an Engine Run" and "A Look at Your Operator's Manual."

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. The next session is to be held March 2 in the Bowers Implement Company.

If you buy jumbo-size shrimp you'll get about 15 to the pound. After cooking, shelling and deveining, the shrimp may be cut in half lengthwise.

Scioto Valley Grange Conducts Valentine Party

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Berger were chairmen for the event. They were assisted by Miss Sadie Palm, Miss Gladys Vause, Mrs. Agnes Riegel, Mrs. Ethel Valentine, Mrs. Russell Bowsher and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Vause.

The program opened with group singing of "School Days". Miss Vause read an article, "Valentines of Yesterday". Games and stunts were enjoyed by the Grange members, who were divided into four teams.

The program closed with a traditional Valentine box. After distribution of the Valentines to the assembled group, the Grange members voted to send their Valentines to the Pickaway County Home.

During a business session, which preceded the program, Fred Dountz of the Scioto Grange gave a report on a State Grange convention which was held in Columbus.

Worthy Master Harold Bumgarner announced plans for an annual Men's Night dinner, which is to be held March 8. Harry Speakman is chairman for the event. He will be assisted by E. E. Runkle and Howard Noecker.

R. S. Swenson, Pickaway County Extension Agent, is to be guest speaker at a meeting scheduled for Tuesday evening. His address is to be on the expanding extension program.

Youth Fellowship Has Initial Meet In Church Center

Twenty young people attended the first organized meeting of the Youth Fellowship of First Evangelical United Brethren church.

The session, which was held in the Christian service center, was opened by Carole Gibbs. Devotions included Scripture reading, group singing and prayer.

Elliot Hawkes presided at a short business session. Edwin Richardson, youth director, led program for the evening, using as his theme "Precious Treasure."

Marguerite Sims, Joan and Judy Horine, Dudley Meyers, Nancy Gibbs, Tommy Estep, and Ronald Hawkes assisted with the program. Elliot Hawkes presented a vocal solo. He was accompanied by Ruth Styers at the piano.

Group singing of hymns was enjoyed during a fellowship period. Refreshments in a Valentine theme were served at the close of the session by Mr. and Mrs. Richardson.

ARMY REDISCOVERS MULES IN RUGGED WINTER GAMES

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—President Jose Antonio Remon of Panama is the 22nd Latin American chief executive to be assassinated.

Yet, strangely enough, in an area where revolutions and violence are not uncommon, few presidents meet death at the hands of assassins.

President Remon

President Remon's assassination was the first in the history of his country, the youngest of the Latin American nations. Seven nations, over a period which ranges back 150 years, have never had a chief executive killed in office. These are Brazil, Cuba, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

Five other Latin American republics, in addition to Panama, have had one president each die in office through assassination—Venezuela, El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Paraguay. Paraguay and Guatemala also each lost a president in combat.

Five of our neighbors to the south have lost two presidents each to armed assailants—Ecuador, Peru, Haiti, the Dominican Republic and Uruguay.

Only Mexico and Bolivia approach the record of the United States and there is some question whether they equal it. Of the three chief executives killed in each of these countries, Alvaro Obregon was president-elect when he was slain in Mexico in 1928, and Pedro Blanco was only acting as president of Bolivia when he was struck down in 1845.

* * *

THE TRADITION in Latin American countries is against violence where the office of the president is concerned. Many presidents have been unseated in the numerous revolutions which have plagued Central and South America, but most of the deposed chief executives have been permitted to leave their offices unscathed.

This record is all the more remarkable when it is considered that few of the Latin American nations have a special force of men, such as our Secret Service, to guard them against harm.

Most Latin American presidents circulate freely in the streets and in public places. President Remon of Panama had several guards with him when he was slain, but this precaution was the exception rather than the rule.

Actually, there are few countries anywhere which have a record comparable to that of the United States.

All the American assassinations —those of Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield and William McKinley —occurred before the Secret Service was entrusted with the special task of guarding the lives of White House occupants.

Unsuccessful attempts were also made on the lives of two other United States presidents—Andrew Jackson and Harry S. Truman—and on two before they took office —Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's food stores, with an eye on George Washington's birthday next Tuesday, are planning specials on smoked hams this weekend. In several areas, turkeys also will be featured attractions.

In some stores, the lower weekend prices will hold good until Monday night because of the forthcoming holiday.

Turkeys will be available in all sizes, and in some cases prices will be down around eight cents a pound from a week ago. Smoked hams will be available at a reduction of 10 cents a pound in a number of markets.

If you want to stay with the favorites, you'll find featured prices in many stores on ribs of beef, legs of lamb and a variety of steaks. Pork Loins, lamb chops and various cuts of veal also will be offered at lower prices here and there.

Lamb prices generally will be about the same as a week ago, but retailers say that they should come down a bit during the coming week because of a decline at wholesale. One large chain is raising prices on pork chops this week in a number of its outlets by around six cents a pound.

The meat industry reports that retail prices of the 14 most popular meat cuts now average lower than at any time during the past year. Pork contributed most to the declines—prices are down 10 to 26 per cent from a year ago. Frankfurters are a pretty good buy, too. They're about six cents a pound under year ago prices.

Once again, egg prices are moving higher. Increases of four to six cents a dozen are being posted by a major chain.

One of the biggest food successes of the past year has been fish sticks. Fugures released this week show that while only 7½ millions pounds of fish sticks were produced in 1953, the total soared to 50 million pounds last year. Frozen food men say that mothers who have trouble getting their children to eat fish usually find they have large appetites for fish sticks.

Incidentally, there will be plenty of seafood for the lenten season. There are big supplies of frozen fish in storage, including large quantities of halibut and haddock fillets. Frozen shrimp also is plentiful. Prices will be moderate.

The list of good buys in vegetables is rather slim this week—potatoes, onions, turnips, new and old cabbage, carrots, escarole, Michigan hothouse rhubarb and greens. Blame it on the winter weather.

Cauliflower, celery, sweet potatoes and cucumbers showed moderate price advances at wholesale during the week. Beets and broccoli remained about the same. Produce men say beans available now are only of fair quality and they note a wide range of quality and prices in tomatoes.

Spring may not be too far away: Asparagus from California reached New York markets this week by air, and the first canteloupes have been shipped from Mexico.

The good buys in fruit include grapefruit, oranges, tangerines and apples. Emperor grapes are available at rather attractive prices.

Judge Quickly Ends Marriage

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Richard C. Burke, 21, a Navy man from Arlington, told a Probate Court judge yesterday that his wife was married nine times before without telling him.

He said he first became suspicious when he found several government allotment checks in their home after his marriage in West Virginia last year to Mariquita Campastrano, 25.

The court also was told the woman is serving three years in the West Virginia Women's Reformatory.

In this respect, no Latin American nation surpasses, and few equal, the unenviable distinction the United States holds of losing three of its Presidents in this tragic manner.

President Remon's assassination was the first in the history of his country, the youngest of the Latin American nations. Seven nations, over a period which ranges back 150 years, have never had a chief executive killed in office. These are Brazil, Cuba, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

Five other Latin American republics, in addition to Panama, have had one president each die in office through assassination—Venezuela, El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Paraguay. Paraguay and Guatemala also each lost a president in combat.

Five of our neighbors to the south have lost two presidents each to armed assailants—Ecuador, Peru, Haiti, the Dominican Republic and Uruguay.

Only Mexico and Bolivia approach the record of the United States and there is some question whether they equal it. Of the three chief executives killed in each of these countries, Alvaro Obregon was president-elect when he was slain in Mexico in 1928, and Pedro Blanco was only acting as president of Bolivia when he was struck down in 1845.

* * *

THE TRADITION in Latin American countries is against violence where the office of the president is concerned. Many presidents have been unseated in the numerous revolutions which have plagued Central and South America, but most of the deposed chief executives have been permitted to leave their offices unscathed.

This record is all the more remarkable when it is considered that few of the Latin American nations have a special force of men, such as our Secret Service, to guard them against harm.

Most Latin American presidents circulate freely in the streets and in public places. President Remon of Panama had several guards with him when he was slain, but this precaution was the exception rather than the rule.

Actually, there are few countries anywhere which have a record comparable to that of the United States.

All the American assassinations —those of Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield and William McKinley —occurred before the Secret Service was entrusted with the special task of guarding the lives of White House occupants.

Unsuccessful attempts were also made on the lives of two other United States presidents—Andrew Jackson and Harry S. Truman—and on two before they took office —Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Trip To Dentist Lengthy For Lad

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Eight-year-old Edward Otis went to a dentist yesterday for his second extraction. Edward didn't like the first one, so just before he was called to the chair, he asked to be allowed to wash his hands.

He didn't return. A missing persons report eventually was filed. Police and his mother Mrs. Elzie Otis feared he had been kidnaped.

Several hours later, however, the boy arrived home, the pain from the bad tooth aggravated by sore feet. He had walked six miles.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's food stores, with an eye on George Washington's birthday next Tuesday, are planning specials on smoked hams this weekend. In several areas, turkeys also will be featured attractions.

In some stores, the lower weekend prices will hold good until Monday night because of the forthcoming holiday.

Turkeys will be available in all sizes, and in some cases prices will be down around eight cents a pound from a week ago. Smoked hams will be available at a reduction of 10 cents a pound in a number of markets.

If you want to stay with the favorites, you'll find featured prices in many stores on ribs of beef, legs of lamb and a variety of steaks. Pork Loins, lamb chops and various cuts of veal also will be offered at lower prices here and there.

Lamb prices generally will be about the same as a week ago, but retailers say that they should come down a bit during the coming week because of a decline at wholesale. One large chain is raising prices on pork chops this week in a number of its outlets by around six cents a pound.

The meat industry reports that retail prices of the 14 most popular meat cuts now average lower than at any time during the past year. Pork contributed most to the declines—prices are down 10 to 26 per cent from a year ago. Frankfurters are a pretty good buy, too. They're about six cents a pound under year ago prices.

Once again, egg prices are moving higher. Increases of four to six cents a dozen are being posted by a major chain.

One of the biggest food successes of the past year has been fish sticks. Fugures released this week show that while only 7½ millions pounds of fish sticks were produced in 1953, the total soared to 50 million pounds last year. Frozen food men say that mothers who have trouble getting their children to eat fish usually find they have large appetites for fish sticks.

Incidentally, there will be plenty of seafood for the lenten season. There are big supplies of frozen fish in storage, including large quantities of halibut and haddock fillets. Frozen shrimp also is plentiful. Prices will be moderate.

The list of good buys in vegetables is rather slim this week—potatoes, onions, turnips, new and old cabbage, carrots, escarole, Michigan hothouse rhubarb and greens. Blame it on the winter weather.

Cauliflower, celery, sweet potatoes and cucumbers showed moderate price advances at wholesale during the week. Beets and broccoli remained about the same. Produce men say beans available now are only of fair quality and they note a wide range of quality and prices in tomatoes.

Spring may not be too far away: Asparagus from California reached New York markets this week by air, and the first canteloupes have been shipped from Mexico.

Judge Quickly Ends Marriage

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Richard C. Burke, 21, a Navy man from Arlington, told a Probate Court judge yesterday that his wife was married nine times before without telling him.

He said he first became suspicious when he found several government allotment checks in their home after his marriage in West Virginia last year to Mariquita Campastrano, 25.

8 States Ready Now To Use Ike's School Aid Program

By HERMAN R. ALLEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eight states would be ready to move immediately under the school-building agency provisions of President Eisenhower's aid-to-education plan if Congress enacts them.

These states already have agencies specifically charged with assisting local school districts to overcome classroom shortages, or other agencies which can exercise similar functions.

The President called for the establishment of state agencies which with federal help would issue bonds to build schools. The local districts would rent the buildings and eventually the rents would pay off the bonds. Then the buildings would become the districts' property.

Six states have constitutional provisions that might prevent their setting up school-building agencies until the three-year life of the Eisenhower plan has expired, but others are in better shape.

Aside from the 8 with agencies in being, 11 apparently could set them up under existing laws, and 14 others could do so with simple enabling legislation.

Four states — Pennsylvania, Georgia, Indiana and Maine — have state school-building agencies as such. Of these, the Pennsylvania State Public School Building Authority apparently operates most closely to the way contemplated in the president's proposal.

Pennsylvania school districts which have reached their legal bonding limits may submit building plans and ask the authority to come to the rescue with money it has raised with bonds.

If the authority approves the plans, it forwards the project money to the district, which repays it with interest over a 40-year rental period.

Interest has run around 3 per cent, which is somewhat high by usual financial standards, but officials note that these school districts are financially distressed and have to take pretty much what they can get.

Aside from the statewide building authority, Pennsylvania has numerous local school-building authorities which operate on a similar principle. They are, actually, a legalized evasion of school district borrowing limits.

Together the state and local authorities have built or contracted for more than 435 million dollars' worth of schools since 1950. School districts themselves, without any authority help, have built 106 million dollars' worth in the same time.

The Georgia system operates somewhat differently in detail, but the objective is the same as in Pennsylvania — to funnel state money down to local school districts.

Local systems must first consult with the State Department of Education to fix their needs. Then they go to the building authority, which — instead of giving them the money — itself acquires sites and builds the schools for lease to the district.

The Georgia Department of Education makes an annual allotment to school districts for building purposes, and this money is used for the rent that pays off authority bonds.

The Georgia authority has spent 130 million dollars on schools in approximately two years and is now planning a final bond issue of 31 million.

No schools have been built in Indiana by the state school-building authority because of court action brought almost as soon as it was set up in 1951 with power to issue bonds and lease schools. Those who brought the suit contended the authority was unconstitutional. The case has not reached the State Supreme Court.

The Maine authority has put four million dollars into schools in 41 towns, the school units in Maine. The Maine authority has virtually reached its present legal borrowing limit.

The Arkansas Legislature just last week passed an act designating the State Education Board to receive and administer any building funds made available by the federal government under the Eisenhower or any other plan.

The Florida State Board of Education issues school construction bonds which are guaranteed by allocations of auto license revenue amounting to about nine million dollars a year. The board would have power to accept federal school funds.

The North Dakota School Construction Board, which has advanced over two million dollars to school districts since it went into operation July 1, 1953, could accept federal funds and operate as a building authority.

Watch Factory Girl Said To Make A 'Perfect Wife'

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Girls who make watches are the world's best housekeepers," says he. "They are scrupulously clean, beautifully groomed and meticulous about everything they do."

They have to be, it seems, because these girls must have fingers sensitive enough to fit 117 pieces into a watch smaller than a dime, to make the pieces absolutely precise, work with tiny wheels and jewels so small they are difficult to see without a magnifying glass.

About 1,400 women work in the suburban New York branch of Simon's company, and each not only is carefully investigated before she is hired, but must go through a training period of from six months to two years.

"These skilled watchmakers are Uncle Sam's most valuable labor force in case of war, for they are the ones trained sufficiently to make the delicate timing instruments used on bombers, fighter planes and many other essentials of combat," Simon says.

The jewel bearings used in watches also are vital to war production, says Simon, and so a plant recently has been established for making these in Rolla, N.D., staffed principally by Indian girls.

Simon says women who like to do needlepoint should be good at watchmaking. They have the infinite patience for minute detail.

Patrolman Aids Man, Then Arrests

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — When State Patrolman A. F. Closson saw Waldo D. Emery trying to get his stalled automobile started, he stopped and helped him. They got it started.

A short time later the patrolman saw Emery again—this time whizzing past his patrol car. Closson testified in Magistrate Court yesterday he contacted Emery again to give him a ticket for traveling 65 miles an hour in a 45-mile-an-hour zone.

Man's Savings Prove Impressive

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Albert F. Kersten, a bachelor, kept occupied by investing his small life savings and playing cards with friends after retiring 25 years ago as an upholsterer.

A spokesman at the Lutheran Convalescent home, where Kersten spent the last six years of his life, said no one was aware he was "a man of wealth."

Watch Factory Girl Said To Make A 'Perfect Wife'

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Girls who make watches are the world's best housekeepers," says he. "They are scrupulously clean, beautifully groomed and meticulous about everything they do."

They have to be, it seems, because these girls must have fingers sensitive enough to fit 117 pieces into a watch smaller than a dime, to make the pieces absolutely precise, work with tiny wheels and jewels so small they are difficult to see without a magnifying glass.

About 1,400 women work in the suburban New York branch of Simon's company, and each not only is carefully investigated before she is hired, but must go through a training period of from six months to two years.

"These skilled watchmakers are Uncle Sam's most valuable labor force in case of war, for they are the ones trained sufficiently to make the delicate timing instruments used on bombers, fighter planes and many other essentials of combat," Simon says.

The jewel bearings used in watches also are vital to war production, says Simon, and so a plant recently has been established for making these in Rolla, N.D., staffed principally by Indian girls.

Simon says women who like to do needlepoint should be good at watchmaking. They have the infinite patience for minute detail.

Steubenville Due For New Hospital

STEUBENVILLE (AP)—A new 100-bed hospital here has been assured with the completion of a three-week campaign which brought in contributions of $466,381, it was announced by Roman Catholic officials.

Costing more than $2 million, the hospital will be operated by the Sisters of St. Francis, an order which has a mother house at Sylvania. The sisters have been operating Gill Memorial Hospital here, an institution given by J. J. Gill, industrialist and former congressman. The latter will become a convalescent hospital. The sisters are providing $500,000 of the cost and the federal government will provide the remainder.

In this "streamlined" age of convenience, one of the most notable changes in consumer food habits is the increased selection of frozen foods. In 1954 shoppers spent $64 billion for foods. Frozen foods made up from 4 to 6 percent of the total dollar sales in many stores compared with only 2 percent in 1940.

The prediction is that in 1955 Americans will consume about 4 billion pounds of frozen food. At least 300 different products are available commercially. A 1953 survey revealed that 225 million pounds of frozen strawberries and 222 million pounds of frozen peas were eaten.

Freezing is the modern and rapidly growing method of preserving fresh perishable foods. It is an easy and safe way to preserve or have preserved the surplus products of garden and orchard, as well as meats, fish, poultry and game. This preservation method captures and holds the garden fresh quality of fruits and vegetables. It maintains the color, flavor, texture, and health giving vitamins found in fresh foods.

For the progressive homemaker who has shopped, or plans to shop for deep freeze it is well to review the following:

A freezer can cut your food costs; save you time, trouble, and transportation; provide delicious meals on short order, and add endless variety to the menus. But in return for all this special service, one has to take time to get to know the freezer.

* * *

It has been found that to derive fullest benefits from this treasure homemakers often have to change a few of their living habits.

This includes more time to plan shopping and cooking weeks in advance; learning the facts about packing, freezing, storing, thawing, and cooking; and how to make the most profitable use of the freezer space provided. The freezing device in itself is no miracle-maker.

According to I. P. Blauser, Ohio State University Extension Agriculture Engineer, freezer hoarding increases freezer food costs per pound of food. For example a 360 pound freezer used for only 360 pounds of food a year will cost 28 cents a pound. If the freezer is refilled so that 960 pounds of food are stored in it, the cost of food drops to 13 cents.

To insure tasty food from the freezer the supply should be completely used and replenished at least once a year. Recommended keeping time for some products is only 3 to 6 months.

Freezers hold 25 to 35 pounds of food per cubic foot of freezer space. The square or rectangular packages are the best space savers.

A home freezer can rightfully be classified as more of a convenience than an economy. It takes much planning and management to make it pay.

As you go shopping for frozen foods in 1955 you will see larger supplies and possible lower prices on several available food items, according to marketing specialists of the Agriculture Extension Service of OSU.

* * *

In especially good supply this year are citrus juices, blueberries, raspberries, apples, peaches, corn, lima beans, brussel sprouts, snap beans, fish and shrimp.

In total weight and product, frozen fruits and fruit products led the frozen food parade in 1953. Statistics from Washington D. C. give the 10 largest selling frozen foods in order of importance as;

Orange juice (concentrate), green beans, lemonade, chicken pie, green peas, fordhook lima beans, broccoli, sandwich steaks, strawberries, french fried potatoes.

The prices of frozen foods vary according to quality, amount, and season of the year,—the same as canned and fresh food prices. At some times they are even lower in price than the same item in fresh food prices. At some times they are even lower in price than the same item in fresh or canned form. And, there is usually no waste to the frozen product.

There is a freezing question which has no definite answer to apply to all items:—"Is it best to freeze before or after cooking?"

The solution is to decide first which will save you the most time when you need it. Sometimes it takes longer to get a food ready for serving after it has been frozen than it does to prepare fresh foods.

"Extension Bulletin 340" and "Home and Garden Bulletin No. 10" are available through the county extension office to help in freezing foods and freezing and using prepared foods.

Here's Sample Of How Reds Report On U. S. Tachen Job

TOKYO (AP)—Red China today accused the United States of "crimes against humanity" for helping the Chinese Nationalists evacuate the Tachen Islands.

In a blistering attack on what it called U.S. "armed intervention in China's internal affairs," the Communists charged U.S. Marines killed and kidnaped the inhabitants of the Tachens and reduced the Tachens to ruins by applying the scorched earth policy.

Refugees from the Tachens told newsmen who covered the evacuation they were leaving the islands because what they heard about communism from fishermen from the Red mainland. Nationalist officials said not a single man, woman or child chose to stay behind.

The Red tirade, broadcast by Peiping radio and quoting the official newspaper Peoples Daily, declared, "Fully armed U.S. Marines landed on Tachen and carried out burning, killing and destruction. This . . . is a most glaring act of aggression.

"U.S. Marines, while helping the Chiang Kai-shek troops to flee from the Tachen Islands, deliberately abducted over 18,000 Chinese inhabitants from these islands. They pulled down and burned houses, leaving the local inhabitants homeless. Then U.S. Marines, at the point of machine guns, forced inhabitants who were reluctant to leave their homes to board U.S. transports and carried them away to Taiwan (Formosa). Many inhabitants who refused to leave were killed by the Chiang Kai-shek troops.

"These are crimes against humanity.

"The United States assigned 'Marine and Army experts' from Japan to carry out 'scorch earth' destruction on the Tachen Islands. As a result . . . the Tachens Islands have been reduced to ruins."

Judge OKs Racing Panel's Decision

AKRON (AP)—Common pleas court has upheld the state racing commission's action which suspended and fined C. B. Fischbach, a horse owner. The commission had found Fischbach had been "loud" in protesting a loss.

Judge Claude V. D. Emmons said the court had no authority to countermand a commission ruling "except where the decision sounds in fraud and abuse of discretion or is arbitrary or unlawful."

Fischbach's racing license was suspended for the remainder of the meeting at Thistle Down track after his protest July 8. He was fined $200.

These Days

If Nehru has changed his mind, it is only because Communist China is growing so strong that it is frightening its friends. In the Soviet Universal State, whatever progress has been made in territorial expansion since 1949 has been made by Red China and not by Soviet Russia. This cannot have gone unnoticed in the Kremlin.

It was no accident that the Indian government discovered maps issued by the Red Chinese government marking parts of India as Chinese. This is the ancient Chien Lung line, the farthest progress that the Manchu conquerors made in their approach to India. The map includes Nepal, Assam, Bhutan and a corner of Kashmir as Chinese. Neither Nehru nor the Kremlin could have been happy about those maps which were indicative of Red China's imperialistic thinking.

This discovery may have helped Nehru change his mind about Formosa. But whatever his opinion may be on the subject, he has not yet indicated that he is averse to Indian troops occupying Formosa and removing Chiang Kai-shek.

Multiple Line Insurance Backed

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Assn. of Mutual Insurance Companies, holding its 76th annual convention here, has adopted a resolution urging the 101st General Assembly to amend the law to permit multiple line underwriting.

The association said that would give Ohioans the same insurance rights as citizens in other states and added that Ohio is the only state which does not grant multiple line powers to its insurance companies and agents.

"This deprives Ohio insurance customers of the right to buy and Ohio insurance agents of the right to sell broader forms of packaged coverage at lower costs than are available in other states under multiple line," the resolution said.

Scientist Sees Vast Advances For Business

Expert Says Methods Now Considered Tops Could Be Obsolete

NEW YORK (AP)—Business practices now considered advanced would become obsolete overnight if Americans put to use the techniques scientists already know or can develop.

A leading scientist, Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, says so. And he thinks this should be done right away before businessmen and the rest of us get buried under the avalanche of records and the "vast and ever-increasing store of information" which is getting too big to be used efficiently.

Or take the telephone. Dr. Bush thinks businessmen will use it more and more. But the telephone is often a nuisance, breaking in on other work. Outlining his views to members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, meeting here, Dr. Bush suggests they perfect a way "by which conversations could be carried on when both participants, rather than just one, want to talk and find it convenient to do so."

As for the stenographer on which most businessmen rely, the scientists say "we could make a machine that would type when we talked into it." This dea might please neither the stenographer nor the makers of dictating machines, however.

Our postal system, with the multiple handling of a letter between sender and recipient, Dr. Bush finds "utterly archaic." He says, "It is quite possible to read addresses photoelectrically, if they are in proper code, and to render all sorting automatic."

Metal type is on the way out, he says, and coming one day soon are "better methods of printing, and better methods of distributing what is printed."

Shipping departments can be brought up to date, too. Dr. Bush says the time is near when the position of every plane in the sky will be known centrally at all times. He asks why businessmen and scientists don't work out "a similar system for the control of freight shipments and trucks."

But Dr. Bush thinks the most pressing need now is to work out from under the mass of paper that is piling up every day.

The work of thousands of able men is constantly being recorded, he says, but an increasing part of that work is lost, for all essential purposes, "because we do not know how to find a pertinent item of information after it has become embedded in the mass."

Techniques for remedying this are already at hand, he says. Fifty companies are active in the production of one kind or another of data handling equipment.

Photographic methods can be used to cram the material of a thousand books into the space of a cigarette package. Computing devices can manipulate records in the form of numbers at the rate of a million operations a second.

"There is no lack of powerful, versatile equipment, which is quite capable of rendering our stored records available in prompt, accurate, effective fashion, and at a distance if this is desired," Dr. Bush says.

Scientific literature, legal documents, or business records could be thus coded and placed under the control of machinery.

Dr. Bush says it would pay, "in a very practical sense, to do the job no matter how seemingly great the cost."

Newspaper's Fair Comment Right Reaffirmed By Jury

CINCINNATI (AP)—The right of newspapers to make fair comment and criticism of public figures won new legal strength from a common pleas court decision which cleared the Cincinnati Enquirer of libel damages.

Tom McCarthy, who conducts farm and news programs for radio station WKRC, had suied the newspaper for one million dollars, claming he had been hurt personally and professionally by an editorial. WKRC is an affiliate of the Cincinnati Times-Star. A common pleas court jury yesterday said in effect the newspaper had the right to make its comments.

The editorial, published Feb. 26, 1953, concerned fluoridation, a public health measure supported by the Enquirer. Its proponents claim addition of fluoride chemicals into a city's water system aids reduction of tooth decay in children.

"By misleading statements, delivered in highly dramatic style, Mr. McCarthy has aroused widespread fears that fluoridation will raise the total death rate, cause more cancer and augment tooth decay," the editorial said in part. "this is by no means the first time Mr. McCarthy has set himself against the community's welfare, thus drawing momentary attention to himself. But it is perhaps the least savory of his adventures."

"These are the facts, for those who want the facts. The same facts were available to Mr. McCarthy. But for reasons quite his own, he prefers not to limit himself to facts. In this case, he has done great harm by causing needless fears and by inciting distruct of fully qualified health officials. We are certain that most persons in Cincinnati will take the word of local and national medical authorities against the word of a broadcaster whose record of reliability we will let speak for itself. The pity is that Mr. McCarthy is permitted by station WKRC to continue in a pattern of 'news reporting' that victimizes the gullible listener."

Judge Joseph H. Woeste told the jurors the editorial in itself was libelous and that it had a natural tendency to injury McCarthy's "reputation as a newscaster, in a way to lessen him in public esteem."

But, he said, the jurors could find it was fair comment and criticism and "therefore was privileged under the right of freedom of speech and of the press."

Liberty of the press, he said, "has been well defined as consisting in 'the right to publish with impunity, the truth, with good notives, and for justifiable ends, whether it respects government, magistracy, or individuals.' But this liberty cannot be justified when it is exercised to publish libelous matter to the injury of another, unless its truth is pleaded and proved."

He added:

"While newspapers as well as others have the full liberty to criticize the conduct and motives of newsworthy persons, and to comment freely on persons in the public eye, such comments on such individuals must be fair and legitimate. If one goes out of his way to cast aspersions upon the personal character of a newsworthy person, and to ascribe to him base and corrupt motives, he must do so at his peril; and must either prove the 'truth' of what he says, or answer in damages to the party injured, unless otherwise excused under the qualified prvileges of 'fair comment and criticism' or 'reply.'

"Just criticism, though severe, may be a great conservator of the character and morals of the people. To truthfully and fairly hold up to public view and condemnation, conduct that is wrongful and detrimental to the community at large, or to social well-being is a very useful and important office of the newspaper and the press. . . .

"A newspaper has the right, if not the duty, to publish, as a matter of general information, fair and reasonable comments, however severe in terms, upon any thing or subject which is made by its owner or author, a matter of public interest. . . .

"Such comment and criticism, however, may not follow such newsworthy person into his private life or pry into his domestic concerns. It may never attack the individual, but only his work."

The court told the jurors "fair comment of criticism is a complete defense to an action for libel."

Roger H. Ferger, publisher of the Enquirer, said the newspaper defended the libel suit "in support of the basic principle of our operations—the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press in the free discussion of public issues and persons involved in those issues."

McCarthy said he would appeal the decision. He said he had no other comment.

The jurors deliberated almost four hours before reaching a verdict, which 10 jurors signed. Only nine signatures are needed in a civil case, in contrast to the unanimous agreement required in criminal court. Judge Woeste ordered them to ignore the merits or demerits of fluoridation in reaching the verdict.

U. S. Skaters Seek To Sweep Tourney

VIENNA (AP)—The United States puts its hopes for a clean sweep in the world individual figure skating championships on the artistic blades of blonde Tenley Albright today after showing complete mastery in the men's competition.

The odds were with Miss Albright, 19-year-old pre-medical student from Newton, Mass., to reclaim the women's title she won in 1953.

The U. S. gained its most clear-cut superiority in the men's championships last night as Hayes Alan Jenkins won his third straight title with a minimum of effort.

Dietzel Signed As LSU Grid Pilot

Dietzel, 30, signed to a three-year contract by LSU yesterday at $13,000 annually, told reporters, "I expect enthusiasm, one of the strongest points in a winning football team."

Former Miami Gridmen Hold Top Positions

OXFORD (AP) — Former Miami football players and coaches who are now head coaches of college and pro football teams could almost form their own squad.

Paul F. Dietzel, ex-Miami star, is the latest to join the ranks. He was named yesterday to guide Louisiana State University's football team.

In colleges are Earl Blaik of Army, Stu Holcomb of Purdue, Woody Hayes of Ohio State, George Blackburn of Cincinnati, and Bob Whittaker of Bowling Green. Ara Parseghian, present Miami coach, played for Miami as an undergraduate.

Marietta Chalks Big Win And Ohio Conference Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The win set the Pioneer conference record at 10 games without a loss, while the Muskies' conference mark is three wins in 10 starts.

Elsewhere in Ohio, Capital's Lutherans, led by Don Forsyth's 21 points, Marietta took a run-away another Ohio Conference game.

Four points by John Augsburger in the last 90 seconds gave Bluffton a 75-72 triumph over Wilmington in a Mid--Ohio League game. Guard Bill Orn netted 22 points for the victors, and Charlie Cox led Wilmington with 20.

Marvin Curry, Jack Dunker and Dick Myers dropped in 22 points apiece, helping Rio Grande come from behind to edge Kent State, 82-81, taking their 10th win in 17 starts.

Hal Boyle Says:

Loosen Your Girdles, Girls

NEW YORK (AP) — Are the strains of modern life beginning to affect even women?

It would seem they are, particularly with career girls. The iron nerves of housewives are still holding up well, perhaps because they dress more sensibly and can lie down and relax in between the times they are prodding their husbands up the ladder of success.

Bartenders report that more and more secretaries and stenographers are having cocktails at lunch to bolster them up for a long hard afternoon of trying to make the boss look like he knows his job.

If you stand on a mid-Manhattan street corner and watch the glamor girls of business go by, you will notice that about one out of every ten of these trim beauties is nervously gnawing her lip, twisting her lovely face all out of shape over some inner worry.

Why?

My theory is that career girls are caught between a man's world and a woman's world. They are doing a man's work all day while dressed up as if they were a movie star on her way to launch a battleship. They are as uncomfortable as a plumber trying to fix a drainpipe while clad in a straitjacket.

No wonder they sometimes are cranky and moody, get easily upset over trifles, or miss out on a promotion because they bawl out their employer instead of buttering him up. They are suffering from a new career girl's disease — clothing claustrophobia. It's their clothing, not the boss, that pinches them.

Nobody can do a good job when he has a cramped feeling. Career girls should take a hint from their married sisters. When a housewife sets out to clean up her lair, she puts on a pair of old loose-fitting slacks, the shirt her husband wore the day before and a pair of floppy slippers that go flap-flap-flap as she flop-flop-flops around looking for more dirt to annoy.

This is the working uniform of most American housewives today. Good thing, too. It enables them to avoid the anatomical imprisonment suffered by the more fashionably dressed career girls. Their carefree clothing allows their bodies to slump into those restful, bulging, lumpy—and, of course, graceful—patterns natural to womankind when they are not a-prowl for their prey, man.

A career girl, I realize, can't go as far in the direction of informal dress as a housewife. An office manager might frown on her if she showed up wearing cowboy pants and a shirt borrowed from her boy friend, and with her hair tied in a frayed dish towel.

But since it is well known that too-tight clothing inflames the temper and reduces mental efficiency, a girl ought to do something about her present ulcer-manufacturing office garb. A recent scientific study which I just made shows that the two key areas where constriction brings out the raging lioness most in a woman are—the waist and the feet.

So any career girl will find it easier to concentrate on winning fame and fortune in her work, if she'll just follow these two tips:

"Either throw away your girdle, or get one so comfortable you can put it on with one hand tied behind you—this I'd like to see—and buy shoes at least one size, and preferably two, larger than the ones you're wearing."

You'll be amazed, Hortense Alger, to see how these two steps will take the pressure off your mind, cut down your nervous irritability. Even if you don't land a bigger job, you'll feel so gay and sweet-dispositioned the guys in the office will be standing in line to marry you.

Let the one who wins you worry about business ulcers. You can stay home and be really comfortable in those floppy slippers that go flap-flap-flap.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Newspaper's Fair Comment Right Reaffirmed By Jury

CINCINNATI (AP)—The right of newspapers to make fair comment and criticism of public figures won new legal strength from a common pleas court decision which cleared the Cincinnati Enquirer of libel damages.

Tom McCarthy, who conducts farm and news programs for radio station WKRC, had sued the newspaper for one million dollars, claming he had been hurt personally and professionally by an editorial. WKRC is an affiliate of the Cincinnati Times-Star. A common pleas court jury yesterday said in effect the newspaper had the right to make its comments.

The editorial, published Feb. 26, 1953, concerned fluoridation, a public health measure supported by the Enquirer. Its proponents claim addition of fluoride chemicals into a city's water system aids reduction of tooth decay in children.

"By misleading statements, delivered in highly dramatic style, Mr. McCarthy has aroused widespread fears that fluoridation will raise the total death rate, cause more cancer and augment tooth decay," the editorial said in part. "this is by no means the first time Mr. McCarthy has set himself against the community's welfare, thus drawing momentary attention to himself. But it is perhaps the least savory of his adventures."

After discussing what it called the facts about fluoridation, the newspaper concluded in its editorial:

"These are the facts, for those who want the facts. The same facts were available to Mr. McCarthy. But for reasons quite his own, he prefers not to limit himself to facts. In this case, he has done great harm by causing needless fears and by inciting distruct of fully qualified health officials. We are certain that most persons in Cincinnati will take the word of local and national medical authorities against the word of a broadcaster whose record of reliability we will let speak for itself. The pity is that Mr. McCarthy is permitted by station WKRC to continue in a pattern of 'news reporting' that victimizes the gullible listener."

Judge Joseph H. Woeste told the jurors the editorial in itself was libelous and that it had a natural tendency to injury McCarthy's "reputation as a newscaster, in a way to lessen him in public esteem."

But, he said, the jurors could find it was fair comment and criticism and "therefore was privileged under the right of freedom of speech and of the press."

The liberty of the press, Woeste said, is not inconsistent with the protection due to private character.

Liberty of the press, he said, "has been well defined as consisting in 'the right to publish with impunity, the truth, with good notives, and for justifiable ends, whether it respects government, magistracy, or individuals.' But this liberty cannot be justified when it is exercised to publish libelous matter to the injury of another, unless its truth is pleaded and proved."

He added:

"While newspapers as well as others have the full liberty to criticize the conduct and motives of newsworthy persons, and to comment freely on persons in the public eye, such comments on such individuals must be fair and legitimate. If one goes out of his way to cast aspersions upon the personal character of a newsworthy person, and to ascribe to him base and corrupt motives, he must do so at his peril; and must either prove the 'truth' of what he says, or answer in damages to the party injured, unless otherwise excused under the qualified prvileges of 'fair comment and criticism' or 'reply.'

"Just criticism, though severe, may be a great conservator of the character and morals of the people. To truthfully and fairly hold up to public view and condemnation, conduct that is wrongful and detrimental to the community at large, or to social well-being is a very useful and important office of the newspaper and the press. . . .

"A newspaper has the right, if not the duty, to publish, as a matter of general information, fair and reasonable comments, however severe in terms, upon any thing or subject which is made by its owner or author, a matter of public interest. . . .

"Such comment and criticism, however, may not follow such newsworthy person into his private life or pry into his domestic concerns. It may never attack the individual, but only his work."

The court told the jurors "fair comment of criticism is a complete defense to an action for libel."

Roger H. Ferger, publisher of the Enquirer, said the newspaper defended the libel suit "in support of the basic principle of our operations—the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press in the free discussion of public issues and persons involved in those issues."

McCarthy said he would appeal the decision. He said he had no other comment.

The jurors deliberated almost four hours before reaching a verdict, which 10 jurors signed. Only nine signatures are needed in a civil case, in contrast to the unanimous agreement required in criminal court. Judge Woeste ordered them to ignore the merits or demerits of fluoridation in reaching the verdict.

At least nine other head coaches of college or professional football squads attended Miami or coached there.

In colleges are Earl Blaik of Army, Stu Holcomb of Purdue, Woody Hayes of Ohio State, George Blackburn of Cincinnati, and Bob Whittaker of Bowling Green. Ara Parseghian, present Miami coach, played for Miami as an undergraduate.

Marietta Chalks Big Win And Ohio Conference Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pioneers of Marietta pocketed the mythical Ohio Conference basketball championship Wednesday night, highlighting a nine-game card of Ohio college games.

With Mark Davis pouring in 34 points, Mariett took a run-away victory, 102-87, over Muskingum.

The win set the Pioneer conference record at 10 games without a loss, while the Muskies' conference mark is three wins in 10 starts.

Elsewhere in Ohio, Capital's Lutherans, led by Don Forsyth's 21 points, Marietta took a run-away another Ohio Conference game.

Four points by John Augsburger in the last 90 seconds gave Bluffton a 75-72 triumph over Wilmington in a Mid-Ohio League game. Guard Bill Orn netted 22 points for the victors, and Charlie Cox led Wilmington with 20.

Hal Boyle Says:

Loosen Your Girdles, Girls

NEW YORK (AP) — Are the strains of modern life beginning to affect even women?

It would seem they are, particularly with career girls. The iron nerves of housewives are still holding up well, perhaps because they dress more sensibly and can lie down and relax in between the times they are prodding their husbands up the ladder of success.

Some signs that this is true:

Bartenders report that more and more secretaries and stenographers are having cocktails at lunch to bolster them up for a long hard afternoon of trying to make the boss look like he knows his job.

If you stand on a mid-Manhattan street corner and watch the glamor girls of business go by, you will notice that about one out of every ten of these trim beauties is nervously gnawing her lip, twisting her lovely face all out of shape over some inner worry.

Why?

My theory is that career girls are caught between a man's world and a woman's world. They are doing a man's work all day while dressed up as if they were a movie star on her way to launch a battleship. They are as uncomfortable as a plumber trying to fix a drainpipe while clad in a straitjacket.

No wonder they sometimes are cranky and moody, get easily upset over trifles, or miss out on a promotion because they bawl out their employer instead of buttering him up. They are suffering from a new career girl's disease — clothing claustrophobia. It's their clothing, not the boss, that pinches them.

Nobody can do a good job when he has a cramped feeling. Career girls should take a hint from their married sisters. When a housewife sets out to clean up her lair, she puts on a pair of old loose-fitting slacks, the shirt her husband wore the day before and a pair of floppy slippers that go flap-flap-flap as she flop-flop-flops around looking for more dirt to annoy.

This is the working uniform of most American housewives today. Good thing, too. It enables them to avoid the anatomical imprisonment suffered by the more fashionably dressed career girls. Their carefree clothing allows their bodies to slump into those restful, bulging, lumpy—and, of course, graceful—patterns natural to womankind when they are not a-prowl for their prey, man.

A career girl, I realize, can't go as far in the direction of informal dress as a housewife. An office manager might frown on her if she showed up wearing cowboy pants and a shirt borrowed from her boy friend, and with her hair tied in a frayed dish towel.

But since it is well known that too-tight clothing inflames the temper and reduces mental efficiency, a girl ought to do something about her present ulcer-manufacturing office garb. A recent scientific study which I just made shows that the two key areas where constriction brings out the raging lioness most in a woman are—the waist and the feet.

So any career girl will find it easier to concentrate on winning fame and fortune in her work, if she'll just follow these two tips:

"Either throw away your girdle, or get one so comfortable you can put it on with one hand tied behind you—this I'd like to see—and buy shoes at least one size, and preferably two, larger than the ones you're wearing."

You'll be amazed, Hortense Alger, to see how these two steps will take the pressure off your mind, cut down your nervous irritability. Even if you don't land a bigger job, you'll feel so gay and sweet-dispositioned the guys in the office will be standing in line to marry you.

Let the one who wins you worry about business ulcers. You can stay home and be really comfortable in those floppy slippers that go flap-flap-flap.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Williamsport, Ashville, Scioto Win In Tourney's 2nd Night

Building up on early leads, Scioto, Ashville and Williamsport rode victorious Wednesday night through the second round of play in the Pickaway County Basketball Tournament.

In the night's opening attraction, Scioto beat Saltcreek, 78 to 53. Jackson was downed by Ashville in the second game, 61 to 48. And Williamsport defeated New Holland in the finale, 63 to 43.

A noisy crowd of approximately 1,300 moved into the Fairgrounds Coliseum to watch the second night of the annual high school tourney play. The player judged to be outstanding on the basis of his work in the tournament, with consideration also for play throughout the season, will be awarded the Bob Bowsher Trophy, donated by The Circleville Herald.

In the opener Wednesday night, Pete Martin, Ray Beavers and Charlie Kerschner sparked a Scioto attack that gave the winners a 22-15 margin by the end of the first quarter. The battle was virtually in the cards at half-time, when Scioto led, 39 to 25.

WITH BROWN, Sturgell and Pettibone leading the way, Ashville's Broncos galloped away to a 20-10 lead in the opening quarter. The contest remained one-sided through the second quarter, when Jackson's only field goal was netted by Longberry 45 seconds before the halftime intermission.

Jackson staged a belated rally and outscored the Broncs in the second half, thanks largely to sharpshooting by Galloway and Smith. But Bill Bartnetson's boys had plenty to spare and coasted to the finish.

Galloway scored seven goals and four fouls for the losers, for a total of 18 points. Smith added two goals and 10 foul tosses for a total 14.

New Holland's Bulldogs tried to hang on tight through the first quarter against Williamsport and were trailing only 11-9 when the second stanza began. However, the Deers gradually wore down their opponents with heavy artillery and expanded their lead to 38-19 by half.

Don Morris ran wild to lead the Deers' attack, registering seven goals and seven fouls for a total 21 points. Stonerock added 14 and Cochenour chipped in 11 to build up the victory edge.

Williamsport, Ashville, Scioto Win In Tourney's 2nd Night.

Building up on early leads, Scioto, Ashville and Williamsport rode victorious Wednesday night through the second round of play in the Pickaway County Basketball Tournament.

In the night's opening attraction, Scioto beat Saltcreek, 78 to 53. Jackson was downed by Ashville in the second game, 61 to 48. And Williamsport defeated New Holland in the finale, 63 to 43.

A noisy crowd of approximately 1,300 moved into the Fairgrounds Coliseum to watch the second night of the annual high school tourney play. The player judged to be outstanding on the basis of his work in the tournament, with consideration also for play throughout the season, will be awarded the Bob Bowsher Trophy, donated by The Circleville Herald.

In the opener Wednesday night, Pete Martin, Ray Beavers and Charlie Kerschner sparked a Scioto attack that gave the winners a 22-15 margin by the end of the first quarter. The battle was virtually in the cards at half-time, when Scioto led, 39 to 25.

Martin caged 19 points, while Beavers tallied a total of 18 and Kerschner had 17.

* * *

WITH BROWN, Sturgell and Pettibone leading the way, Ashville's Broncos galloped away to a 20-10 lead in the opening quarter. The contest remained one-sided through the second quarter, when Jackson's only field goal was netted by Longberry 45 seconds before the halftime intermission.

Jackson staged a belated rally and outscored the Broncs in the second half, thanks largely to sharpshooting by Galloway and Smith. But Bill Bartnetson's boys had plenty to spare and coasted to the finish.

Galloway scored seven goals and four fouls for the losers, for a total of 18 points. Smith added two goals and 10 foul tosses for a total 14.

New Holland's Bulldogs tried to hang on tight through the first quarter against Williamsport and were trailing only 11-9 when the second stanza began. However, the Deers gradually wore down their opponents with heavy artillery and expanded their lead to 38-19 by half.

Don Morris ran wild to lead the Deers' attack, registering seven goals and seven fouls for a total 21 points. Stonerock added 14 and Cochenour chipped in 11 to build up the victory edge.

Large netted six goals and three fouls for 15 points for New Holland.

In the fourth quarter of the Ashville-Jackson tussle, Dick Brown crashed through the glass portion of a Coliseum door while battling for a loose ball. He suffered a cut on the right arm.

Lopez Expects His Indians To Grab AL Pennant Again

By AL LOPEZ
Manager, Cleveland Indians

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—I am not in the habit of making predictions but I firmly believe the Indians can repeat this year as American League champions. However, I don't think we or any other club will match our record breaking 111 victories of last year for a very, very long time to come.

I would say we'll win enough to repeat as champions, but a figure like 111 is once in a lifetime.

I expect the Yankees to be stronger this year. Bob Turley ought to help their pitching staff and their infield should be pretty well set when Billy Martin gets out of the Army. It is my guess that he will be the regular shortstop for Billy Hunter doesn't figure to hit much, especially against us.

I think we'll be stronger, too. The addition of Ralph Kiner and Herb Score ought to help us in two key departments, long distance hitting and pitching. Kiner gives our lineup balance. With fellows like Larry Doby, Al Rosen, Vic Wertz and Kiner batting in that order, we now have two lefthanded power hitters and two righthanded ones.

We've been trying to get Ralph for a long time. I like him very much. I think he's still a fine ball player. Right now I believe Kiner will hold down left field and Al Smith right field. Anyway, wherever Kiner is used, he is bound to strengthen the position because he gives us that extra long ball and you can't have too many of those.

Ralph had a very impressive home run record in the National League. He is a fine team player and I believe the opportunity of playing with a pennant winner in a stadium well suited for his batting talents will enable him to make some valuable contributions to our cause in '55 and in seasons to come. He is only 32 and always has stayed in good condition.

It has been suggested that I intend to seek revenge on the Giants during our spring training exhibitions for our disastrous World Series defeats. That's not so. We will use spring training to find out how good our kids are. I don't see much pobssiility of making any deals which would help us so we'll have to look to our youngsters. We'll give Herb Score, the great young pitching prospect from Indianapolis, every chance we can to make good. If he proves up, he'll be used as a regular starter next season.

Hank Foiles is another rookie who will get a full shot at a regular spot. The boy is so impressive he deserves a long look. He is young, strong and very fast. And they tell me he is a fine defensive catcher. His .330 batting average in the American Association can't be laughed off either.

I am well satisfied with my infield. Vic Wertz will be at first base, Bobby Avila, the league's batting champion at second, Al Rosen at third and George Strickland at shortstop. I think Eddie Joost, who signed with us recently as a free agent, will prove very helpful in a utility role. He can fill in at all infield positions except first and he could also make us a fine pinch hitter. He has a good batting eye and can hit the long ball for you.

You know all about our pitching. I look for the older fellows to do about the same and for the younger ones, like Don Mossi and Ray Narleski to do even better than last year.

Marquette Cagers Romping Through Basketball Season

The Associated Press

This was supposed to be a long, winter for Marquette in college basketball, but, man, spring is bustin' out all over for the Warriors.

They weren't expected to have much this season, and Coach John Nagle was pessimistic despite 10 returning lettermen. He figured they wouldn't be able to improve much on their 11-15 record of last season. That prospect seemed genuine when Marquette dropped its opener to Michigan State 91-72.

At that point, though, Nagle, in his second year with the Warriors, changed his style and gave his boys their head on the court. He's had a tiger by the tail ever since.

Marquette ripped through its 20th consecutive victory (tops in the nation) since losing the opener by pounding Bradley 93-83 last night. That gave the Warriors, No. 6 in this week's Associated Press poll, a 98-point average in three games since learning of their selection as the first of nine at-large teams for the NCAA Tournament.

Bradley rattled the Warriors somewhat with a first-court press midway in the second half. But the Warriors, topped by Rube Schultz's 23 points, had a 25-point lead at that stage and were beyond reach.

San Francisco, No. 1 team in the nation, whipped St. Mary's (Calif.) 65-57 and extended its winning streak to 18. Big Bill Russell scored 24 points.

Third-ranked LaSalle, the NCAA champ, ho-hummed past Albright 89-69 with two-time All America Tom Gola scoring 27 points. Oklahoma A&M shook up the Missouri Valley Conference race by defeating Tulsa 62-52 in an intra family squabble between coaching brothers Hank and Clarence Iba.

In other league races, North Carolina snapped a three-game losing string by outlasting Wake Forest 83-79 in an Atlantic Coast Conference contest despite Dick Hemric's 35 points. Virginia Tech dropped its 17th straight decision as Virginia Military neared a Southern Conference playoff berth 76-74 on Don Nyman's layup with 17 seconds left.

Penn closed in on its second Ivy League title in three seasons by rallying to beat Brown 67-61 while Princeton surprised second-place Columbia 53-52 with a great drive in the last seven minutes.

Reynolds Says His Best Job In '49 Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Although he pitched two no-hitters in the course of a brilliant career, Allie Reynolds contends he gave his finest performance in the opening game of the 1949 World Series, in which he downed the Brooklyn Dodgers 1-0 on Tommy Henrich's home run in the ninth.

The Chief, whose recently announced retirement pained the Yankees, yielded all of two hits in that epic thriller, but the circumstances engraved it deeper in his memory than any other of his many victories. His opponent that day, big Don Newcombe, struck out 11 Yanks and was a mighty figure until "Old Reliable" gaffed him in the ninth.

Cy Slapnicka, who for many years was an executive of the Cleveland Indians and was credited with the discovery of Bob Feller, now is taking bows for coming up with Herb Score, the sensational southpaw rookie who may rival Bobby's feats.

Slapnicka, now an Indians scout and resident of Lake Worth, Fla., began watching Score pitch as a sophomore in that city's high school. When Score was graduated he grabbed him with the help of a $60,000 bonus. Last season Score had a 22-5 record at Indianapolis and struck out 330 batters.

Garmaker Holds Edge In Big 10

Garmaker jammed in 29 points in the Gophers' 80-70 victory over Indiana Monday, while Schlundt was held to 21. Garmaker now has an official 263 points in 10 league games for a 26.3 average and Schlundt 232 in nine for 25.7.

The best average, which probably will stand up for the season belongs to Robin Freeman of Ohio State with 27.8 for six games. Freeman, however, has withdrawn from further competition because of injury and illness.

171 Golfers Vie In Texas Tourney

A continuation of the fantastic scoring that has marked this tournament the last five years was forecast, although the man who turned in the greatest feat (a 259 for 72 holes) thought 262 would win it this time.

Chandler Harper, the baldish man from Chattanooga who is the defending champion, warmed up with a casual 2-under-par 69 yesterday. He said the 6,400-yard Brackenridge Park course was a little tougher than last year.

Marquette Cagers Romping Through Basketball Season

The Associated Press

This was supposed to be a long, winter for Marquette in college basketball, but, man, spring is bustin' out all over for the Warriors.

They weren't expected to have much this season, and Coach John Nagle was pessimistic despite 10 returning lettermen. He figured they wouldn't be able to improve much on their 11-15 record of last season. That prospect seemed genuine when Marquette dropped its opener to Michigan State 91-72.

At that point, though, Nagle, in his second year with the Warriors, changed his style and gave his boys their head on the court. He's had a tiger by the tail ever since.

Marquette ripped through its 20th consecutive victory (tops in the nation) since losing the opener by pounding Bradley 93-83 last night. That gave the Warriors, No. 6 in this week's Associated Press poll, a 98-point average in three games since learning of their selection as the first of nine at-large teams for the NCAA Tournament.

Bradley rattled the Warriors somewhat with a full-court press midway in the second half. But the Warriors, topped by Rube Schultz's 23 points, had a 25-point lead at that stage and were beyond reach.

San Francisco, No. 1 team in the nation, whipped St. Mary's (Calif.) 65-57 and extended its winning streak to 18. Big Bill Russell scored 24 points.

Third-ranked LaSalle, the NCAA champ, ho-hummed past Albright 89-69 with two-time All America Tom Gola scoring 27 points. Oklahoma A&M shook up the Missouri Valley Conference race by defeating Tulsa 62-52 in an intra family squabble between coaching brothers Hank and Clarence Iba.

In other league races, North Carolina snapped a three-game losing string by outlasting Wake Forest 83-79 in an Atlantic Coast Conference contest despite Dick Hemric's 35 points. Virginia Tech dropped its 17th straight decision as Virginia Military neared a Southern Conference playoff berth 76-74 on Don Nyman's layup with 17 seconds left.

Penn closed in on its second Ivy League title in three seasons by rallying to beat Brown 67-61 while Princeton surprised second-place Columbia 53-52 with a great drive in the last seven minutes.

Garmaker Holds Edge In Big 10

Garmaker jammed in 29 points in the Gophers' 80-70 victory over Indiana Monday, while Schlundt was held to 21. Garmaker now has an official 263 points in 10 league games for a 26.3 average and Schlundt 232 in nine for 25.7.

The best average, which probably will stand up for the season belongs to Robin Freeman of Ohio State with 27.8 for six games. Freeman, however, has withdrawn from further competition because of injury and illness.

Reynolds Says His Best Job In '49 Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Although he pitched two no-hitters in the course of a brilliant career, Allie Reynolds contends he gave his finest performance in the opening game of the 1949 World Series, in which he downed the Brooklyn Dodgers 1-0 on Tommy Henrich's home run in the ninth.

The Chief, whose recently announced retirement pained the Yankees, yielded all of two hits in that epic thriller, but the circumstances engraved it deeper in his memory than any other of his many victories. His opponent that day, big Don Newcombe, struck out 11 Yanks and was a mighty figure until "Old Reliable" gaffed him in the ninth.

Cy Slapnicka, who for many years was an executive of the Cleveland Indians and was credited with the discovery of Bob Feller, now is taking bows for coming up with Herb Score, the sensational southpaw rookie who may rival Bobby's feats.

Slapnicka, now an Indians scout and resident of Lake Worth, Fla., began watching Score pitch as a sophomore in that city's high school. When Score was graduated he grabbed him with the help of a $60,000 bonus. Last season Score had a 22-5 record at Indianapolis and struck out 330 batters.

171 Golfers Vie In Texas Tourney

A continuation of the fantastic scoring that has marked this tournament the last five years was forecast, although the man who turned in the greatest feat (a 259 for 72 holes) thought 262 would win it this time.

Chandler Harper, the baldish man from Chattanooga who is the defending champion, warmed up with a casual 2-under-par 69 yesterday. He said the 6,400-yard Brackenridge Park course was a little tougher than last year.

Insurance Experts Rate Girl Motorists Above Boy Friends

Brave Wizards Offer Figures To Prove Claim

Gal Drivers Show Faster Foot When Brake Is Needed

The brave men who set the rates for the Farm Bureau's insurance companies have gone on record with the claim that girls are better motorists than their boy friends! In fact, the wizards have declared a 20 to 67 percent cut in rates for Ohio gals in the under-25 group. But male drivers in the same age bracket will still pay the regular youthful driver rate!

Even though the younger boys and girls are the ones concerned, it is obvious that a thing like this might easily run wild. It can start harangues from back seats all over the district, and even get the wife's mother stirred up to speech-making too. Many a man at the wheel have to plug his ears.

How come this high rating for the girl drivers? Bowman Doss, executive vice-president of the insurance companies, tells it this-a-way:

"It's not necessarily that young women have greater mechanical skill as drivers. It's simply that they are safer drivers. They take fewer chances with an automobile."

In short, he says, they drive like adults. So, they will get adult rates.

The insurance companies are not making the mistake of "underestimating the power of a woman," either. They go one step further and say that not only do Ohio women have a better accident record than men but, by a little device known as marriage, they make better drivers of the males.

Safe driving tests which the companies conducted among 128 boys and 128 girls support the contention that girls are the safer drivers.

On reaction, 66.4 percent of the girls were quicker than the boys. This mean that, after the nerve impulse to stop, the girls were faster in moving the foot from the accelator to the brake.

In braking distance, 57 percent of the girls were quicker than the boys. In the total braking distance, 59 percent of the girls showed superior control.

Doss also cited figures compiled by Professor A. R. Lauer, director of the driving laboratory at Iowa State College. By sampling 7,692 cases, Professor Lauer found that women between the ages of 16 and 33 are less liable to traffic accidents and violations than men in the same bracket.

"It seems that the girls have much better attitudes toward traffic rules," Doss concludes. "They just don't seem to take the chances boys do."

AT LONG LAST they have pinned down the blame for the starling nuisance—on William Shakesphere, the famed English bard!

As almost every community finds out in time, the starlings are rugged customers to chase away, defying gas attacks, electric shocks, rifle squads and Pumpkin Show hawg callers. But now, at least, the public can put the blame on playwriting Willie.

Kenneth L. Morrison, editor of the Audubon magazine, says it was a group of Shakesphere enthusiasts, members of his "fan club", who released the first batch of the birds in New York City's Central Park. It seems they wanted representatives of every type of bird mentioned in Shakespeare's writings to make themselves feel at home in the United States.

However, it took four trys before the English starlings were able to stick it out in this country—back in 1891. The first three flocks died off, but a batch of 120 finally started all the starling disturbances on this side of the Atlantic. Their ancestors are still at it.

PROPERTY OWNERS get the strangest mail. For example, the note signed "foreman of the Hot Potato Ranch" with a letterhead printed in Hawaii—and mailed with a good old Circleville postmark! Part of the monkeyshines went as follows:

"Dear Sir: I was talking to your foreman the other day about some grazing land and he assured me there was plenty of pasture available, so the reason for this letter is to know just how soon we can run our herd of white face cattle over. . . .

"Do you have plenty of water? This is very important because my cattle should have plenty of water without too much iron in it, as it will affect their meat and make it taste like pig iron. . .

"They should be salted once a week. If your foreman can take care of that, it would save us sending one of our cowhands over to your ranch. . ."

You all are a-welcome, podner, to drive in your branded white-faces. And while you're at it, you maniac, how about cutting the grass?

Fayette Jury Frees Man In Murder Case

WASHINGTON C. H. (AP)—Amid a courtroom demonstration spiked with applause, 24 - year-old Jack Southward yesterday was acquitted of first-degree murder in the death of his wife, Ruth.

The young truck driver had been charged with the shotgun slaying of his 23-year-old wife at their home here. He testified the shooting was accidental.

In the courtroom when the verdict was read were Southward's mother and his two children, aged three and four.

The jury deliberated almost four hours. Southward was charged in his wife's death last Sept. 10, two days after the shooting.

Common Pleas Judge John S. Case cleared the courtroom because of the cheerful demonstration after the verdict was read.

The jury of nine men and three women was given the case at 3:40 p. m. yesterday afternoon.

Street In Boston Named 'Pi Alley'

BOSTON (AP)—Williams Court became Pi Alley officially yesterday—but few will notice the change.

The narrow alleyway in the heart of Boston's newspaper row has been known as Pi Alley almost since the first printer dumped his galley of pied (jumbled) type into its dingy recesses.

The block long lane—which begins where the Post and Globe face each other across Washington Street—has long borne the sign "Williams Court" and beneath it the jumbled spelling ("Pi Alley)."

But no more. The Public Improvement Commission authorized the switch yesterday.

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio Highway Director S. O. Linzell in a directive to his 12 divisions engineers has instructed them to plant at least three trees for every one that is removed during highway construction.

Hillsboro Decision To Be Appealed

CINCINNATI (AP)—Russell L. Carter, Dayton attorney, has filed notice of an appeal from a U. S. district court decision which upheld Hillsboro's school zoning.

U. S. District Judge John H. Druffel recently upheld the zoning in a suit brought by five Negro mothers who claimed it amounted to segregation of Negroes.

Judge Druffel ruled that the zoning, which sends most Hillsboro Negro elementary school pupils to the all-Negro Lincoln School, was a temporary measure until new construction work can be completed at two other grade schools.

Hamilton County Ballots Probed

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ballots from four Hamilton County precincts will be subjected to laboratory tests to see if they bear improper markings.

The ballots were subpenaed yesterday by Prosecutor C. Watson Hover. One person already has been indicted for vote county irregularities in last November's election.
